Dancing to Prison.

No Brain Monopoly.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1928.)

A YOUNG actress, Dorothy Mackaye, convicted of attempting to conceal the fact that another gentleman beat her husband to death, went to San Quentin prison in California yesterday to spend a few years—unless some kind heart lets her out.

Crossing the ferry, she danced a few steps, and quoting, "we have our entrances and our exits," she danced into a prison cell, with reporters making notes.

ONE of the little lady's prison associates will be Clara Phillips, who killed another woman with a hammer.

We take our crimes lightly.

A new moving picture gives the public its choice of two professional criminals, competing with each other. They knock down other criminals, steal jewelry. The abler of the two "turns straight" when a wide-eyed, innocent little girl hands him a Bible.

The public applauds and admires both criminals. Charles Dickens' presentation of "Fagin" would seem old-fashioned.

ABOUT half the United States has no right to complain about government, good or bad. For half the people do not vote, and deserve whatever they get.

Of 54,000,000 native born and naturalized citizens, 21 years of age, only about 20,000,000 take the trouble to vote.

Other nations to which many Americans consider themselves superior, are sufficiently interested in their governments to vote. Germany, England, Ireland, Australia, Canada, vote 80 per cent. This country did that forty years go.

VITAMIN F, essential to normal growth in animals has been discovered at the University of California. Without it animals attain only one-half their normal size. Without Vitamin F animals would die out, for lack of a second generation. Vitamins A, B, C, D, E, F are now known. Others remain undiscovered, as do certain elements, of which a total fewer than 100 make up everything that exists in the universe. Men have learned a good deal in 17,000 years since the late Stone Age, when they didn't know anything, except how to fasten a sharp flint at the end of a club.

THE government of this glorious country ought to do what it can to help business, and diminish unemployment, instead of concentrating on interference with moving picture enterprises, the most successful in the world, carrying American ideas and merchandise all over the globe.

TALKING about a monopoly of moving pictures is idiotic. The most successful unit in moving pictures is one individual, Charles Chaplin, who writes, directs and acts his own pictures. You may have a monopoly in steel, pork, or street cars, but not in brains.

FIVE more American marines killed by the energetic Nicaraguan bandit Sandino. With war tanks, flying machines and other equipment this country should be able to send a column of marines through Nicaragua safely. If we must send military expeditions to Central America, we ought to do the thing adequately.

HUNT SLAYER OF TWO BOYS BOUND IN WIRE

KIDNAP KILLING SEEN IN CASE

By International News Service

INDIANA HARBOR, Ind., March 2.—A nation-wide search for the slayer and for the unknown parents of two little boys, brutally slain and their wire-bound bodies hurled into the Indiana Harbor ship canal, was started here today.

Unknown motives confront police. The identities of the boys are unknown. The manner in which they were slain is unknown.

Ten days ago the first body, fully clad, floated to the surface. Yesterday the second boy's body appeared. Examination revealed the boys had been killed, their bodies bound with identical wire, and had been weighted down.

From the similarity of the features, and from the similarity in the type of clothing, police believe the boys were brothers. Although thousands of distracted mothers and fathers whose children have been missing have passed through the morgue where the body of the first child lay, not one was able to identify it as their child.

For this reason police believe the children may have lived in a locality far from Indiana Harbor and that their slayer kidnaped them, probably held them for ransom, and failing to receive it, murdered them and cast their weighted bodies into the murky waters of the canal.

Explodes Motor Bubble

NEW YORK, March 2.—Out of Pittsburgh came Fred W. Hochstetter today to burst the bubble of Lester J. Hendershot's "fuelless motor," destined, it was claimed, to revolutionize the world. Hochstetter exhibited to scientists and to representatives of every New York newspaper models of the device which Hendershot three years ago sold for $25,000 to a group of Pittsburgh business men, silent until now in fear of ridicule.

Hochstetter showed how cleverly-concealed batteries provided the power which he said Hendershot

INDICT DEFIER

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP.)—Robert W. Stewart, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, was indicted by a federal grand jury today for refusing to answer questions about the Continental Trading Company's Liberty bond profits before the Senate Teapot Dome committee.

The indictment, containing two counts, charged that the Standard Oil man declined reply to queries put to him on February 1 and again on February 3. The committee had asked whether Stewart knew anyone who received any of the $3,080,000 of Continental profits or whether he had discussed the bond transaction with Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome.

It was set forth in the charges that Stewart had violated section 102 of the revised criminal statutes which makes it a misdemeanor for a witness regularly subpenaed by a Senate committee to refuse to answer questions pertinent to the subject under investigation.

20 YRS. HANDED BANDIT

The fast-fading "Flathead Mob," experts of highway banditry, lost another of its prized members today when Stanley Bodziakowski, 33, of Detroit, was sentenced to serve 10 to 20 years in Western Penitentiary by Judge Ambrose B. Reid in Criminal Court. He was convicted on Wednesday on a robbery charge which grew out of his part in Paul Jaworski's holdup of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation's $104,000 payroll in Coverdale March 11, 1927.

Bodziakowski was a sad figure as he heard Judge Reid inform him, "You have disgraced your race." Bodziakowski's wife, a two-year-old child in her arms, stood in a corner of the courtroom as sentence was pronounced. She had come from their home in Detroit with money for her husband's defense. Bodziakowski, it was whispered, had been deserted by his colleagues in crime at the critical moment.

45 Days For Mine Exhorter

By International News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., March 2.—Anthony Minerich, alleged I. W. W. member and member of the board of the Ohio-Pennsylvania Relief Association, with headquarters in Pittsburgh, was sentenced today to 45 days in the Muskingum county jail when found guilty of contempt of court charges growing out of speeches he is said to have made at Yorkville and Dillonvale, O., in violation of Federal injunctions recently issued.

Minerich was sentenced by Federal Judge Benson M. Hough. Minerich was arrested recently after he had made two speeches which the district attorney charged, tended to incite riot in the Southeastern Ohio coal district.

The sentence will not take effect until Monday morning, as the defense attorneys announced their intention of filing an appeal from the decision.

At the hearing it was brought out that Minerich said "Down with the damnable injunction." The injunctions were issued by Federal Court to protect coal operators from interference with the reopening of their mines.

EXPERTS TO TEST MT. WASHINGTON ROAD

CITY TO HIRE TECHNICAL MEN; BUILDER PAYS

Are there structural faults in the Mt. Washington roadway?

That is the question to be decided by disinterested technical experts acting under the direction of the city, but paid, according to an offer reaching Council, by the Vang Construction Company, which is doing the work.

This decision was reached after a three-hour inquiry yesterday, in the course of which members of Council headed by James F. Malone, acting Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang; C. M. Reppert, his chief assistant; J. J. Paine, head of the Bureau of Tests, and John D. Stevenson, in charge of the Bureau of Highways and Sewers, on the concrete work of the project.

The hearing has its genesis in a report turned over to Malone by Paine, in which the latter indicated that the concrete tested by his bureau was not the concrete used on the job. At the hearing yesterday, while declining to make any formal and definite accusations, he intimated his belief that the concrete tested was "faked" to show unusual strength.

Questioned by Councilman John S. Herron, both Paine and Stevenson admitted that, judging by their tests, the Mt. Washington bridge and approach walls are structurally sound. Both Lang and Reppert expressed themselves as thoroughly dissatisfied with the work, adding that their opinion is based upon superficial examinations and that drillings and other tests would be necessary to determine if the honeycombing and other surface defects affect the strength and durability of the structure.

"There is no question of the durability, strength and stability of the concrete," said Stevenson in answer to a question of Herron's.

"Is the concrete, judging from your tests, adequate to carry the load required?" asked Herron.

"Absolutely," said Paine, qualifying his statement with his reiterated intimation that the tests were "too good," indicating that a special preparation had been submitted for tests instead of the real mixture used.

All of the tests, the hearing developed, were not made by Paine's bureau, some being done by the Bureau of Bridges and Structures. The method of making tests, Paine charged, admitted of fraud, in so far as a substitution would be possible.

FOUR FIREMEN INJURED FIGHTING BLAZE

KITTANNING, Pa., March 2.—Four firemen were injured in the $500,000 fire which destroyed almost an entire block last night and early today.

The flames, discovered early last night, were renewed with greater fury shortly before midnight after it was believed they had been extinguished.

A dozen guests of the Linnon Hotel, the only building in the block which was not severely damaged, fled in their night clothes. The six buildings destroyed were the L. E. Diehl clothing store, King shoe store, Moesta Clothing Company, H. H. Meyler Building and two smaller structures.

The injured firemen were Jack Tippet, assistant chief of the Leechburg fire department, who sprained an ankle in falling on an icy pavement; Lloyd Parks, Leechburg, bruised in a 15-foot fall from a fire escape; Herbert Caldwell, Ford City, overcome by smoke and rescued by firemen; Glenn McCauley, Apollo, injured by falling debris.

The fire is believed to have started from an over-heated furnace in the King shoe store. Firemen from neighboring towns were preparing to return when it was discovered the flames had spread past the Moesta Building to a smaller structure.

Voegler was taken to Homeopathic Hospital in the auto of R. C. Wells, 5500 Aylesboro avenue, where it was said he had a fracture of the skull. Culgen was arrested, charged with reckless driving.

VELMA SMOKES AS TRIAL NEARS

By International News Service.

PAINESVILLE, O., March 2.—Velma West, 21-year-old flapper "hammer slayer" who goes on trial for the murder of her husband, Thomas Edward West, next Monday is losing her air of nonchalance as the ordeal approaches, Sheriff Edward Masmussen said today.

She has shown increasing signs of worry and she is being constantly watched by a matron. Velma is held at the county jail, inaccessible to visitors. She smokes many cigarets and spends much of her time reading magazines.

The blonde Velma will go to trial in new clothes which her mother, Mrs. D. L. Van Woert, of Cleveland, is now buying for her. All dresses purchased are black, it is said. A pair of low-heeled shoes are to be supplied, also.

Interest in the approaching trial quickened today as attorneys for both sides began forming lines of battle. The defense expects to call at least 30 witnesses. The state may call even more, as they presented 51 witnesses before the Lake county grand jury which on January 12 indicted Mrs. West for the murder of her husband.

Mrs. West killed her husband with a hammer in a "blind rage." They had quarreled in their honeymoon bungalow. She picked up a hammer and struck him about a dozen blows. Then she calmly washed her hands, changed her clothes and motored to a party in Cleveland, where she was quite successful in playing bridge.

asserted came from natural forces alone.

Attorney E. H. Wicks of Pittsburgh, declaring the statute of limitations prevented prosecution, said his Pittsburgh clients had sent Hochstetter to New York that newspapers of the country might follow "the lead of The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in attempting to prevent perpetration of the same trick again."

These demonstrations and expressions followed the declaration of Rear Admiral H. I. Cone, managing director of the Guggenheim Fund for the Promotion of Aeronautics, who Wednesday thanked The Sun-Telegraph for its effort "to protect the prestige of the aeronautical industry by directing our attention to the exhibits obtained in Pittsburgh." Admiral Cone also denied that Col. Charles A. Lindbergh or the fund was involved in the Hendershot affair.

PATENT REJECTED

At the conference Attorney Wicks exhibited contracts to show that Hendershot no longer held any financial interest in his "invention," which, he said, the United States Patent Office definitely rejected August 12, 1925. Hochstetter, who operates a scientific laboratory in Pittsburgh, followed Wicks with his story of how he had disclosed the hidden batteries and of a confession which Hendershot made to him.

After this conference in the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, a small group of newspapermen were invited to the office of Clark W. Parker, managing director of the Automotive Royalties Corporation and former chief research engineer, General Motors Corporation. Parker, without having seen the Hendershot model, explained in the exact terms of Hochstetter that the principle was impossible of development. That no matter how perfectly the "magnetic electric currents" might be induced they did not exist in quantities of commercial importance. Parker holds patents to more than 100 devices now in general use in the automotive world. He is credited with the entire development of the famous V-type Cadillac.

CHALLENGES HENDERSHOT

Hochstetter threw wide an open challenge to meet Hendershot over his model and publicly expose its workings and force Hendershot to admit the truth of his disclosures.

Hendershot, meantime, could not be found. He was reported to have left Washington for New York, where he was said to have a series of appointments, none of which he kept.

Maj. Thomas N. Lanphier, commander of the First Pursuit Squadron, Selfridge Field, Detroit, who brought the Hendershot contrivance to the attention of both Col. Lindbergh and the Guggenheim Fund, is believed to be either in Detroit or Albany, where Col. Henry Breckinridge, attorney for Lindbergh and Hendershot, conferred with the young air hero.

STATE OBSERVES CHARTER DAY

Practically every grade school, high school and parochial school in Pittsburgh today celebrated Pennsylvania Day, the two hundred forty-seventh anniversary of the granting of the original Pennsylvania charter to William Penn by Charles II. Statewide observance was urged in a proclamation by Gov. John S. Fisher, to further stimulate and impress the youth of the commonwealth with the early history of Pennsylvania, with special reference to Penn, its founder.

March 4 is the correct date, but when it falls on Sunday, as in this year, the observance takes place on the preceding Friday.

The Department of Public Instruction at Harrisburg published and distributed to every teacher and school superintendent in the state a pamphlet giving the Governor's proclamation, a biography of William Penn, details of the state's agriculture, art, historic shrines, industries, music, science and other features, with suggestions for programs in each grade from kindergarten through the 12 grades.

In many Pittsburgh schools the observance was casual and confined only to classroom discussion. In other schools, interesting and elaborate programs were arranged for the entire student body. Orators declaimed on the sturdy qualities of William Penn, speakers pointed to the abundant resources and beauties of the state, pupils sang spirited and patriotic songs.

LID ON NEW DIAMOND FIELD

LONDON, March 2.—(AP.)—Most diamond dealers were confident today that the discovery of an Eldorado in South Africa would not affect the price of diamonds.

Details concerning the field in Namaqualand, in the northwest part of Cape Colony, were related in the South African assembly at Capetown yesterday. Minister of Mines F. W. Beyers described it as an Eldorado, unique in the history of the country.

He said he had picked up in one hour diamonds valued at £60 ($300). Experts were announced to have taken diamonds valued at £100,000 ($500,000) in a few weeks hand picking from 100 claims owned by the government. The area contains 20,000 claims.

"It is the biggest diamond field ever discovered anywhere," asserted Sir Davis Harris, assemblyman from Kimberley and a director of De Beers Consolidated Mines, Ltd.

It was considered probable in London that many dealers determined the effect of this new supply on the market last December when the South African government first announced the discovery, but did not make public the richness of the field. At that time it was stated that the area would be worked in interest of the state. This was taken here to mean that a close watch would be kept on the output and provision made to prevent the market from being swamped.

Minister Beyers, in announcing that the government intended to declare the entire area state diggings, was held today to have confirmed this view. He said it was unthinkable for the government to do otherwise, since this would mean forcing very large quantities of diamonds on the market and that was most undesirable.

WOMAN FIRES AT PORCH CLIMBER

While Patrolman Fred Smola stood outside a house at 1302 Western avenue last night, Philip Allen, 35, evicted as a roomer there, climbed to a porch roof and entered the bedroom of Mrs. Lulu Burns, 24, and was promptly fired upon by the woman.

Mrs. Burns, in Morals Court today, stated that Allen had grabbed her before she fired. The shot went wild.

Allen had failed to pay his rent, Mrs. Burns testified, and she had put his trunk and other belongings on the front porch. Last night Allen returned with Patrolman Smola, and unable to open the door, climbed to the second-story window.

After the shooting Patrolman Smola entered the house and arrested Mrs. Burns and Allen. Magistrate A. D. Brandon held Allen for court on a charge of aggravated assault and battery, and discharged the woman.

UNION COUNSEL UPHOLDS JUDGE

By International News Service.

INDIANA, Pa., March 2.—Judge J. N. Langham's actions with reference to a hearing on the injunctions against the striking miners in Indiana county were defended today in a statement issued by Bruce A. Sciotto, attorney for the United Mine Workers in this county.

Sciotto declared emphatically that "at no time has Judge Langham refused to conduct a hearing on any injunction granted" in connection with the coal strike. The attorney was a witness before the Senate coal investigating committee here last week.

"In some manner," Sciotto stated, "there has been a misquotation as to what was actually testified by me before the senatorial investigating committee.

"At that time numerous reporters as well as officials of the United Mine Workers were present and by reason of some confusion a misunderstanding was obtained and a report of what was stated has been filed which is incorrect.

"I am frank in stating that at no time has Judge Langham refused or objected to holding a hearing in any of the injunctions granted. As a matter of fact in the Rossiter injunction, due to my time being occupied, I requested an extension of time in which to file our answer.

"On January 27, 1928, at my request, counsel for the complainant consented that the time for filing of the answer be extended to February 15, 1928.

"On February 2, we filed an answer, exactly 23 days before the Senate committee held its investigation. The matter could not possibly have been heard prior to the filing of our answer."

Attorney Sciotto indicated that the union will not press for a hearing on the injunctions for a while because of the approachit term of Criminal Court, which will be followed by the trial of a number of civil cases in Judge Langham's court.

There had been a general impression following the Senate committee's investigation that responsibility for not holding a hearing on the Rossiter injunction and others, the former restraining striking miners from singing in the ya of the now famous Magyar Presbyterian Church, rested with the judge. Sciotto issued the statement, he said to remove this false impression.

BOY PREDICTS HE'LL DIE ON GALLOWS

"The next time you hear of me it will be when I am on the gallows," was the prophecy made by Sylvester Barton, 20, after he and Charles Shelby, 18, had been held for court by the United States commissioner on a charge of breaking into the postoffice at Bertha, Washington county, which is in the building of the Four States Supply Company store, February 24.

Barton, who said he had spent nearly all his life in orphanages, reformatories and detention schools, asserted he had not entered the building to rob the postoffice, but to steal some sheep skin coats in the store.

Shelby, who also was said to have been in an orphanage, was arrested with Barton, Saturday by East Liberty police, following the discovery of a pocketbook containing an automobile driver's license in Barton's name on the store floor.

HEROIN MAKES DERELICT OF CLEVER COLLEGE YOUTH

By WINIFRED BLACK.

Poor Billy—he's back "on the stuff" again.

It used to be cocaine, with once in a while a jab of morphine.

Now it's heroin—and heroin is the worst of all.

The last time I saw Billy, he was a rosy, laughing, proud happy boy.

He'd had a dreadful fight—but he had won and the whole world was brand new to him.

He walked as if he were humming a gay tune in his heart and between you and me, I believe that he was—poor boy.

WINIFRED BLACK

Who's Billy? Oh, he's just a boy. About 22 I should think he was. When I first knew him he was 19 or a little less—freshman year over—just ready to go back and be a sophomore.

Clever, good-looking, good-natured, well bred—his uncle is a justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

His father is dead—his mother—she was a beautiful girl, once a belle, too, they say, highly educated, with everything in the world to live for.

Mother Broken-Hearted

Now she's just a mother—a broken-hearted, broken-spirited, discouraged, defeated—mother.

It's all about Billy.

He was the pride of her heart—the hope of her life, but one day he went skating and had a bad fall and hurt his spine in some queer, unheard of way, and he was in the hospital for months, and somebody gave him some morphine.

At first it was the doctor—then it was the nurse—and after that someone who came to see him.

And Billy came out of the hospital an addict.

His mother couldn't think what was the matter with him—he was so changed.

Sullen, morose, nervous, ill-tempered, quarrelsome, pale, haggard—what had become of light-hearted, good-natured, carefree, affectionate Billy?

And then one day Billy's mother discovered the truth.

She didn't feel so very badly about it at first. She was relieved to know that it was "nothing but a habit."

"Don't you worry, Billy," she said. "You've been trying to fight it alone. We will fight it together now—you and I."

Mothers Cure Success

And Billy's mother and Billy went to live on an island in Puget Sound—they built a little shelter of rough boards—they kept a little sailboat for emergencies—they brought their provisions from the mainland and Billy fished and hunted and they camped out on the beach.

Billy suffered tortures at first, but gradually the pain and the lassitude and the despair left him, and one morning Billy's mother woke up to see Billy as he used to be—a laughing, curly-headed, rosy boy—the kind you can't pass without wanting to rumpie up his curly hair—no, not to save your life.

Billy was cured—but to be quite sure they stayed a month longer—four months in all, alone, together on the island in rain and shine, dark nights, and moonlit—and the long, deep talks they had by the camp fire. How far away it all seemed—the misery and the degradation that was gone.

"All gone, Billy," said Billy's mother. "All passed and gone. We will never think of it again you and I." And Billy went back to college—and he went right up to the head of his class, and Billy's mother's heart sang so, she could hardly live for the joy of it.

And then, one day, Billy came home—and something was wrong. He was furtive and silent and pale—the worst was true. He had gone back "on the 'dope,'" again.

Takes Pal Along

One of the old "dope" peddlers had hunted him out—in college and come to him again and again, and Billy went back "over the route," and this time he didn't go alone—he took his room-mate with him.

Yesterday I saw Billy down near the docks in New York.

Ragged, dirty—begging for a dime or a nickel or even a penny.

I don't think I would have known

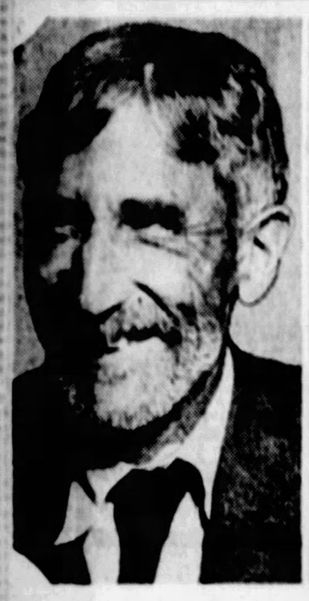
HOBO KING VISITS -:- PITTSBURGH



JAMES EADS HOWE

King of the hoboes, James Eads Howe, proved his title by addressing the hobos of Pittsburgh on lack of employment and tales of The Pike.

TIM M'HOOK

Mr. McHook informed the audience of eight that he was planning to attend the national hobo convention in New York. He bemoaned the lack of employment.

"IT WAS LIKE THIS—"

"I remember" is the favorite salutation when good hoboes get together. Brother Hamilton (left), direct descendant of the Hamilton's of old, tells about the time Jim Corbett, the dandy, danced around good old John L. Brother Hamilton said the hobo of today is not the hobo of yesterday and he bewailed the lack of employment.

SINKERS AND JAVA

Doughnuts and coffee were served by Brother Howe to his colleagues. After this gentleman had consumed his share he complained of the employment situation.

SOLUTION SEEN IN FARMS BILL

him, but he knew me, and something in his eyes called to me—poor Billy—I'm afraid he'll never get "off the stuff" again.

There's no place for him to go. His mother is broken in health, and she could not undertake the ardors of another long siege on the island alone, with a half-crazed boy.

Yes, I'm afraid poor Billy is gone.

Some night, perhaps, he'll slip off the dock into the clear, clean cold water—poor boy! And he could have made so much of his life.

And just to think that there is no legitimate use in the world for heroin—the drug that has mastered him now.

Nobody has any right to make heroin in the first place—but they go on making it just the same.

We do not make it in this country any more—we've stopped that criminal folly two or three years ago, but it is smuggled in and it isn't at all hard to get if you know the ropes.

Thousands Like Billy

Billy is just one boy—there are thousands—yes hundreds of thousands like him in the United States this very day.

What are we going to do about it?

Down in Brazil they know what to do.

This is what Mr. Permanbuco of Brazil said at the great opium conference in Geneva:

"The government quickly realized that addicts were the chief propagaters of the vice, more especially in the countries where the supervision of drug stores and pharmacists by government medical officers make it almost impossible to buy dangerous drugs without a medical prescription.

"In these countries addicts can only obtain the poison that is slowly killing them from persons engaged in illicit sale, and as they alone know where the drugs can be found, they are the first to pass them on to new victims.

"It is for this reason that our government has made the treatment of addicts compulsory. They can obtain treatment in one of two ways.

"They can apply to a magistrate to be sent to a special establishment, or if they are arrested by the police or reported to the authorities, they are compulsorily detained in Sanitoria under government supervision until they are permanently cured."

Not so far behind the times down in Brazil, are they? How soon are we going to follow the good, practical, sane example set by Brazil?

Stephan Porter, of Pennsylvania, has introduced a bill calling for Federal farms for addicts,—it's a practical bill. It's sensible. It's sane and it is civilized.

What are you doing to help make that bill into a law?

Who is your congressman? Have you written to him about it?

Why not do it—this very day—this very hour—write and tell him you wish he would vote to pass the Porter bill.

He wants to know how you feel about it.

Write and tell him—and then you will have the comfort of knowing that you yourself, of your own initiative are doing something to help this horror of "dope" out of the United States—and keep it out.

LINDY'S CAR RUNS OVER GIRL

VICTIM FAINTS, FALLS UNDER WHEELS

By Universal Service.

BOSTON, Mass., March 2.—The car in which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh was being driven from Mechanics Building last night, hit and narrowly missed killing Miss Charlotte Wells, 23, of Cambridge, who fell in a faint beneath the wheels of the moving auto.

Lindy's mother, Gov. Fuller and his wife, had just left the building to cheers of the crowd and Lindy, with Admiral Andrews in a car following were pulling away from the doorway. A group of police were holding back the crowds.

The girl, standing on the curbing, fainted and fell just in back of the front wheels and before the rear wheels of the slowly rolling car.

Arthur Crowley, son of Supt. of Police Michael H. Crowley, on duty at the spot, leaped to the running board and hit the chauffeur of Lindy's car sharply in the back. The chauffeur instinctively jammed on the brakes, and the car stopped with the rear wheel on the body of the girl.

Girl Scouts with an ambulance nearby, rushed the girl to City Hospital where it was found she was suffering from a bruised leg and possible internal injuries.

The public is invited to see the voting machine demonstrated. The forum is being conducted under the auspices of the Hilary Club with A. M. Ginsburg, chairman.

PHONE STATION ROBBERS LOOT 5 BOXES

Telephone pay station robbers last night ripped out five phone boxes in a church, a confectionery store, a gas station and a street car waiting room in the East End and stole the toll coins.

At the Calvary Episcopal Church, Shady avenue and Walnut street, the phone in the choir room was torn from the wall by the robber, who broke a glass in a rear door to gain entrance. Two phones were reported gone from the waiting room at Tioga Junction Station, Tioga and Oakwood streets, and another was taken from the confectionery store of J. F. Dornan, Penn and Fifth avenues.

The confectionery store of S. J. Minnick, 503 North Highland avenue, also was reported robbed of cigars, cigarets, pipes and candy worth $500.

Failing to open a safe in the gasoline station of Fred Fouriner, 3500 East street, after knocking the combination knob off with a crowbar, thieves jerked a telephone pay station containing $5 from the wall and fled, early today.

UNIONTOWN POLICEMEN REFUSE TO QUIT JOBS

UNIONTOWN, Pa., March 2.—Four members of the police force, Desk Sergeant Henry O'Neal, William Price, David Turner and Rossie Miller, have been asked to resign by Mayor Luther S. Crawford and have refused. Their dismissal is set for Monday. They have engaged counsel and demand a hearing before Council and the Civil Service Board.

The Mayor has not indicated his reason for demanding their resignations.

SEEK 3 IN SOAP 'SWINDLE'

Soap by any other name is soap just the same, opines J. Z. Hathaway, manager of a gasoline filling station at Singer street and Chartiers avenue, McKees Rocks, who today has enough glycerine soap to fill a road sized swimming pool with suds.

As a result of Hathaway's soap, which consists of a gross of bars, borough police are seeking three men traveling in an automobile who told him that he was purchasing a high grade chemical compound to keep water from accumulating on windshields.

Hathaway paid $18 for the bars and after the men drove away he discovered that he had purchased only glycerine soap.

SNOW FLURRIES AND SUNSHINE FORECAST

Light snow flurries will mingle with sunshine in the vagaries of "normal early March weather" for the next day or two, according to Forecaster W. S. Bretzman.

The snow is drifting down from the upper lakes. Due West the skies today were clear, reports showed.

Suburban points in the Ohio Valley and in the South Hills today reported three to six inches of snow.

The mercury fell to 28 at 3 o'clock this morning, but likely will ascend to 40 late today, Bretzman said. While colder weather Saturday is officially forecast, it will be only slightly so, he asserted.

EVICT SUES FOR $50,000

Leon Bartoschek, Stowe township, has entered suit against the Pressed Steel Car Company in Common Pleas Court, asking $50,000 damages, charging he was assaulted and injured and his furniture moved out into the street in a forcible ejectment from a company house. He says that for the house, at 104 Orchard street, Stowe township, he paid $7.70 a month.

January 8, 1925, while in the employ of the company he was injured and, he says, made a verval agreement with company agents that he was to occupy the house, and pay rent when he was able to go back to work. On April 20, 1927, he made a payment of back rent, accepted by the company, he says, and yet the same day was forcibly ejected.

MELLON TO WIELD WHIP AT G. O. P. CONVENTION

A. W.'S ROLE AS "KEYMAN" SHOWN

By EDWAD L. RODDAN,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Anyone who can divine the political mind of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon will perhaps come nearest to telling who will be the Republican presidential nominee this year.

As the primaries in the "pivotal" states draw near, it is becoming more apparent daily that the astute Mellon is the "keyman" who will wield the whip-hand at the Kansas City convention.

Even the influence of President Coolidge himself, it is generally conceded, will be less potent than the influence of this Pennsylvania captain of finance and industry, who before his entrance into national politics less than a decade ago was virtually unknown to the great voting populace of this country.

Secretary Mellon's rapid rise on the political ladder is no secret, but it certainly is unique, at least in modern public life. Largely through his efficient and skillful handling of the nation's fiscal policies, it is no exaggeration to say that Mellon is now the recognized "spokesman" of the great financial and industrial interests within the Coolidge administration and that he will occupy the same position in the Republican party councils at the national convention.

With that background of power on which to work, Mellon will not only control his own powerful Pennsylvania delegation when the final break comes, but he is also expected to exercise a similar influence with the all-important delegations from New York, Massachusetts, New Jersey, and to a lesser extent of other eastern states. This will be the most formidable block of voting strength in the convention and the candidate who succeeds in lining it up on his behalf will have pretty easy sailing.

The last vestige of opposition to the Mellon faction in Pennsylvania politics disappeared like magic a few days ago when former Gov. Gifford Pinchot decided he would not be a candidate this year for the Senate against Senator David A. Reed, the Mellon candidate. This was looked upon as a tacit admission that an attempt to challenge the influence of the nation's fiscal leader would be promptly quashed by the voters of his own state.

It helped, to some extent, however, by leaving Secretary Mellon free to devote his talents to the national political field.

Of course, all talk of Mellon's influence in the Republican convention depends upon the expectation of a deadlock when the actual balloting gets under way. But that this will happen is a foregone conclusion, because even the most ardent supporter of Secretary Hoover, the leading candidate to date, will concede that he has no hope of nomination on the first few ballots.

Thus far Mellon has given no indication of his choice. He may be for Hoover, like his co-worker, Under Secretary Ogden Mills of New York. He may be for Dawes, or Longworth, or one of the "favorite son" candidates now in the field. No one knows whom he is for and the general impression is that he desires all the aspirants to have a fair run in the primaries without interference on his part. When the break comes, however, it can be safely said that the lightning will strike just about where Mellon wants it to strike.

OLD FIRE SQUAD TO RETURN

No. 15 Engine Company, which formerly covered the Penn avenue district and was considered one of the best companies in the Fire Bureau, will once more take charge of fighting fires in the "Strip," according to reorganization plans of the company. The engine house in Penn avenue between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets is being remodeled and is expected to be ready within a month.

The company was disbanded some time ago upon the recommendation of an efficiency expert. The reorganized company will form part of the downtown fire fighting system. Two captains and 14 men will make up the personnel. Only veterans and men who have made a good record for themselves will be selected as members.

ICE GIVES WAY, ERIE MAN DROWNS IN BAY

ERIE, Pa., March 2.—John Wassell, 241 East Front street, was drowned in the bay at the foot of German street late Thursday. Wassell, with two other men, got out of a machine near the Pennsylvania Railroad docks and started to walk across the icebound bay. A few hundred yards from shore the ice gave way. The two other men fled despite Wassell's cries for help. Coroner Daniel Hanley is conducting an investigation of the drowning.

MUST REPORT AUTO CRASHES

Suspension of license is the penalty to be inflicted on drivers of automobiles who fail to report to local police departments or the State Highway Department facts concerning accidents in which persons are injured or killed, or when damage occurs to an apparent extent of $50 or more, according to W. W. Mathews, chief of the saftey section of the state highway department. Mathews said only 21 of 121 fatal accidents have been reported.

Under the law, if two cars are involved, both drivers must make a report. Such information is not available for civil or criminal action, nor does it affect insurance policies.

Owners of garages or repair shops also are required, on pain of fine, to report any cars which show evidence of having been in an accident or having been struck by a bullet.

The state is checking accidents through newspaper accounts and following up with letters.

NOTHING STAYED ON HIS STOMACH

Suffered Terribly, But Ten Herbs Made Him "Feel Like a New Man."

"I suffered with stomach, liver and bowel disorders for several months," was the statement of Mr. Harry Eisenberger, 806 South Cameron Street, Harrisburg, Pa., to the Ten Herbs Man, who is at May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily demonstrating the great natural medicine, Ten Herbs. "My stomach was so weak I could not retain even the lightest kind of food," Mr. Eisenberger continued. "After eating, I would bloat and have pains in my stomach, and then I would have to vomit. I lost all desire to eat. My liver was sluggish, and I always had a worn-out feeling. My bowels were so irregular I had to take physics several times a week.

MR. HARRY EISENBERGER

"I read in the paper of several persons, whom I know, being helped by Ten Herbs. After making inquiries, I decided to try your medicine. Since taking three bottles, I feel like a new man. My stomach is in splendid condition. Food digests properly; my appetite is greatly improved, and I do not bloat or vomit any more. My liver seems to be active, as I have more ambition, and do not have that worn-out feeling. I received such good results from Ten Herbs that I gladly endorse your medicine to the public."

Everyone is constantly exposed to colds—any place indoors, where people congregate, or where one works. If a person has a cold, and sneezes or coughs, germs float in the air. If you are weak, run down, constipated, or stomach is out of order, you are likely to be an easy prey of these germs and have a cold. Protect yourself by building up resisting power. Thousands are using and recommending Ten Herbs for this purpose. It cleanses the system, tones up the stomach, regulates the liver and bowels, benefits the kidneys, and promotes health and strength in general.

The Ten Herbs Man is at the May's Main Store, 529 Liberty Avenue, Pittsburgh, where he is daily meeting the public and explaining the merits of this medicine. Free sample given.

HELD AFTER KILLING

VIOLET GIBBS MARTINI INGRAM

Thomas Dutlith, 33, shown in the inset, was found dead in the Chicago apartment of Violet Gibbs and Martini Ingram, two extremely pretty young women. They could not explain how it happened to police and are being held while detectives investigate.

DOPE FRAME-UP PLAINT PROBED

Mike Zervos, part owner of a Greek coffee house in Fourth avenue, New Kensington, yesterday, at a hearing before the United States Commissioner, was accused of "planting" an ounce of morphine in the coffee shop of Nick Levadis, a competitor, who conducts an adjoining establishment, so that Levadis would be arrested for unlawfully possessing drugs.

The accusation was made by Spiras Fellias, who testified that Zervos had told him of "planting" the morphine to "get even" with Levadis. The New Kensington police and government narcotic agents were said to have received news that Levadis had morphine, to have raided May 17 and found the ounce package in an old stove on a stairway. The commissioner reserved decision.

On the strength of Fellias' statement, Zervis and his partner, John Christikias, were charged with the unlawful possession, instead of Levadis. The commissioner reserved his decision.

It was also brought out that on June 4, 1927, a package containing a loaf of bread, a half ounce of morphine concealed in it, was received by Levadis by mail from New York. In some manner the government narcotic agents learned of it and arrested Levadis. Fellias said that Zervos was in New York a few days before the pacakage arrived.

FILM COMEDIES HIS TRAGEDY

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., March 2.—(A.P.)—Instead of making the world laugh by producing film comedies as he had hoped to do, Nicholas A. Trasca, late yesterday added his name to the coroner's suicide list when the police came to arrest him for failing to pay his studio employes. Trasca's small fortune, accumulated in a Columbus, O., tailor shop, had dwindled away in the few months he had spent here attempting to produce motion pictures, and he shot himself in the head while the officers waited.

Trasca had been charged with violation of the state labor law when mechanics, cameramen and electricians complained about not getting their pay.

BEAVER FALLS BOY GETS LIFE

YOUNGSTOWN, O., March 2.—Oakley Ross, Beaver Falls, Pa., youth, was found guilty of first-degree murder by a jury here today in connection with the killing of Patrolman Henry A. Clemens, who was shot to death during a robbery. The jury recommended mercy, making a sentence of life imprisonment mandatory. Ross never will be eligible for pardon.

STAR MOTHER'S BILL UP SOON

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Consideration of the Butler Gold Star Mothers' bill, which passed the lower House recently, is scheduled to be taken up by the Senate Military Affairs Committee within the next few days and undoubtedly will be reported favorably, according to a statement made today by Senator David A. Reed, of Pittsburgh, chairman of the committee.

Senator Reed said there was a possibility of the committee reaching the measure this afternoon.

Sponsored in the House by Representative Thomas S. Butler of West Chester, Pa., the bill provides for the transportation to France at the expense of the Federal government all gold star mothers, or those who lost sons in action during the World War, as well as unmarried widows of ex-service men who lost their lives in battle.

Unless it is weighted down by amendments which have been suggested, the measure should be approved by the upper chamber without serious opposition, Senator Reed said. Certain members of the Senate, he stated, have suggested that they intend to offer amendments providing that the visit to the graves of American soldiers on French soil be allowed also to a more extensive group of relatives, including those having sons and husbands missing in action, those who died of disease and even those who died and were buried on this side.

According to the Pittsburgh senator, the chief danger to passage of the bill lies in the possibility of it being weighted down unnecessarily. If it is retained in its present form it should go through all right, but if it is made too comprehensive there may be a disposition on the part of some to hold it up until too late in the session for favorable consideration.

It is the idea of the Pennsylvania Senator that the pilgrimage to the French battlefields and burial grounds of the American hero dead should not be made this year, but next, in order to give the American commission ample time to complete its program for proper markings. This, as he points out, however, is contemplated in the bill already passed, which leaves it to the discretion of the President when the first contingent of gold star mothers shall start.

Senator Reed views the whole proposition as a noble undertaking, and has expressed the belief that it will be supported by the Senate generally. He has assured those interested in the measure that it will have his full sympathy.

WILLS DIVINITY STUDENTS FUND

Students in the Pittsburgh Theological Seminary of the United Presbyterian Church are to be helped through the estate of Mrs. Marian L. McFadden, 1239 Palo Alto street, whose will was probated today. From her estate, valued at $20,000 the United Presbyterian Orphanage, and the Home for the Aged each receive $500. Relatives are bequeathed $7,500. The residue of the estate is turned over to the Allan McFadden fund, named for her husband, the income of which is to aid divinity students.

The $75,000 estate of Gustie L. Hillerich, 58 Oakwood avenue, West View, is left to his sister, Tillie V. Hillerich, after payment of $1,000 each to Harry and Gussie Ludwick, nephew and niece.

BANK CASHIER PAROLED

Found guilty of abstracting funds of a bank, Earle S. Axton, former cashier of the First National Bank of Fairchance, was paroled for two years by Judge R. M. Gibson today. The jury, sealing its verdict last night after a trial lasting three days, found Axton guilty on two counts of abstracting about $4,000 and recommended mercy, found him not guilty on three counts charging embezzlement, and not guilty on a count charging making false reports to the comptroller of currency.

HELD FOR COURT IN DEATH OF "IN-LAW"

Konstanty Prosniewski, 46, of 2333 Fleetwood street, was held for the grand jury on a charge of manslaughter, by a coroner's jury today inquiring into the death of his father-in-law, Casimir Elbrecht, 62, of 3031 Brereton avenue. HOW TO KEEP WELL

U.S. Senator from New York

Roughage in Food Needed to Ward Off Many Ills

IF YOU were asked what is the most common of human ailments what would you answer?

The most frequently met of all complaints is that simple physical defect constipation. No other disability is responsible for so many different symptoms.

Headache, sore throat, pain in the stomach, bloating, dizziness, sleeplessness—these are some of the many results of constipation. Loss of energy, unwillingness to do mental or physical labor—these, too, are the effects of constipation.

I am a reverent man and adore the Supreme Architect, but there is no doubt in my mind that man has 10 or 15 feet too much intestine. It was all right when we lived in a savage state and ate the rough foods of field and forest. But with the advent of modern cooking, denatured foods and softness of life, everything has changed.

If the passageway between the stomach and exit were a good deal more direct, there would be less trouble. The waste would be less likely to dam up within us a festering, fermenting mass of disease producing material. The way we are made, plus the foods of civilized living produce a digestive condition which makes for constipation.

The natural result of our mode of living and of eating of the foods we must take, is sluggishness of bowel action. It requires constant thoughtfulness and care to prevent it. It is safe to assume that without this thoughtfulness and care in the choice of foods, constipation is sure to be present.

I am hopeful that by changing away at the public there will be aroused ultimately an appreciation of the importance of overcoming or preventing constipation. It is not necessary to have it, of course, but you will have it unless you take heed of a few facts. It is almost as inevitable as the lives we lead. There is no doubt if our lives were more simple, our food plainer, our habits more regular, the intestinal tract would act better.

Roughage is essential to bowel action. There must be fibre and substance, or there is nothing for the walls of the intestines to get hold of to squeeze the waste materials forward. That is why bran, cabbage, lettuce, celery, spinach and fibrous foods are recommended. Fruit juices and vegetables, especially fresh vegetables, are particularly important.

A tablespoonful of mineral oil daily—swallowed when the stomach is empty, three hours after eating at night, or a full half hour before breakfast will help to overcome the effects of constipation. This is a temporary expedient and, if the diet is regulated as it should be, it will not be necessary to resort to petroleum oil every day. It can be taken for an indefinite period, but if you live as you should and eat as you should, it will not be necessary to depend on any medicine, even so simple and harmless a thing as petroleum oil.

A.—What will relieve neuritis? The pains shoot down my limbs and affect the heart. Could it be due to a very serious operation some time ago?

A.—See a skin specialist who will advise proper treatment.

A.—Neuritis is usually due to some infection in the system. The infection would naturally cause nervousness and this in turn would be apt to affect the heart. Locate the infection first of all. For further particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

Rich-Poor Marriages Stir Fay King's Comment

By FAY KING

IT ALWAYS seems to me a dreadful mistake when parents rich or parents poor drive their children from home because they do not approve of the son-in-law or daughter-in-law that has made a sudden appearance!

They rant and rave and rage and declare they would rather see their children dead than married as they are! They brood over ingratitude. They want to see in this unfortunate marriage only the cleverness of a young fortune hunter or golddigger if they are rich, and just base destroyers of family peace and happiness if they are poor.

How much wiser and better to use a little good sense and diplomacy! They are fooling themselves with empty words when they think they would rather see their children dead than so married!

If that same son or daughter lay at death's door, and it meant death or this marriage to save that child, they would welcome this most unwelcome addition to the family with open arms.

If that child who has so distressed them by falling in love with the wrong person had committed a crime instead, or contracted diphtheria, these same parents would spend every cent and bit of energy to defend or nurse that child back to happiness or health.

So why not stand by them in this lesser test of parent love?

Suppose the mate they have foolishly preferred to their good parents is utterly unworthy, how much quicker and more thoroughly they can convince their child of this in the proper environment—their hearts and home!

On the other hand, this young person now so unworthy in their eyes might even surprise them by his or her real worth.

MEDITATIONS of a MARRIED WOMAN
by HELEN ROWLAND

THE GAY PHILANDERER

SOME women are born for unhappiness; some make themselves unhappy; and some fall in love with a philanderer—and have unhappiness in large chunks thrust upon them. You know the type!

* * *

The average man's love is apt to be sketchy and impressionistic, and to lead lightly from woman to woman; but once he has been caught, harnessed and led up the old path to the altar, he is likely to trot along faithfully, like good old Dobbin, for the rest of his life.

HELEN ROWLAND

But the philanderer will never STAY PUT! No matter how many times he may go through the wedding ceremony, he is never more than one-half of one per cent married. He can hardly wait to kiss the bride, before he is off flagging one of the bridesmaids.

Why or how he ever gets as far as the altar when he never means to go beyond the second kiss, Heaven only knows. Marriage is just an incident or an accident in his life, and it never "takes!"

* * *

Yet no matter how many women he may have fooled, he can always persuade the next woman that, "THIS time it is the Real Thing!" So sublime is woman's optimism!

All the girls whose hearts he has used for a football, all the women he has "loved" and succeeded in "loosing," only make him seem more alluring.

But the philanderer, like Pan, was born without a soul and can never be conquered or tamed. All the bonds of love and law won't TIE him. Devotion soon bores him, tears roll right off of him; and even a string around his finger won't make him remember that he's married, five minutes after he leaves the house. He is like a "slicker"—nothing penetrates, sinks in or makes an impression on him.

Give the average man enough rope, and he'll soon get so tangled up that he'll come trotting back and ask you to put him on a four-foot leash. But the philanderer will merely use the rope to lasso another woman. His heart is like a barber shop in which the cry is always "Next!"

* * *

Life, to him, is just one adventure after another, one experiment after another—one woman after another!

When he is ninety he will be sticking the few remaining hairs across his bald spot, sticking a rose in his coat, and tottering out in search of a passing flapper.

* * *

For his is the love that knows no code, no rules, and no agelimit, the love that never dies—pure, unadulterated SELF-LOVE.

Tomorrow's Horoscope

Saturday, March 3

Learning is to the studious and riches to the careful—BEN FRANKLIN.

ALTHOUGH there are several conflicting testimonies among the planetary positions for this day, yet resolution and persistency should lead to success and substantial return for diligence and careful handling of matters in hand. Real estate, agricultural, mining and machinery contracts may be advisable, but matters of mercantile bargaining should be postponed and money protected.

Those whose birthday it is may achieve a successful year by industry and perseverance, but in real estate, mining machinery or agriculture rather than through commercial or financial transactions.

A child born on this day should be studious, stable and responsible, but may succeed by plodding rather than sheer cleverness.

For Smokers

The tree of knowledge extends its branches in no more inviting way than do the cigaret trees, whose flexible branches, of a colored celluloid composition, are fastened to a firm base, mounted on wood. Each branch ends in a flower, whose hollow center holds one cigaret. These little novelties come in two sizes—with 10 or 20 branches, and in all of the bright shades such as Italian red, Chinese green, Belgian blue, sunflower yellow, coral, etc. Such a useful ornament is quite the fad in fashionable boudoirs.

ARE YOU a "TOXIC"

Where Has My Youth Gone?

Face haggard and worn. Body always tired—too tired even to rest. That is the plight of many men and women today—aging long before their time because of a poisoned condition. The abnormal habits of modern life put too great a strain upon our vital organs, especially the liver. The liver becoming "limp" or sluggish, fails to cleanse the blood of the poisons formed in food waste. Then a toxic or poisoned condition of the whole system that affects heart, blood pressure and blood vessels. The liver occasionally needs a little help and there's nothing better for this, as doctors agree, than ox gall. Ox gall is a remarkable natural stimulant for the human liver, promoting its normal active functioning. Dioxol tablets are genuine ox gall in dainty and tasteless form, each tablet representing 10 drops of pure ox gall. To be sure of getting the genuine ox gall, be sure of getting Dioxol. They cost less than 2c each at good druggists, and a few make a wonderful difference.

Puzzled

DEAR MISS GALE:

I have been to you for advice before this and was very much pleased, so I am coming for more. I think your advice is wonderful. Now this is my problem: Before Christmas I answered a young man's letter. We were corresponding with each other for sometime. It was two weeks before Christmas that I answered his letter, then I sent him a nice card. Up until this date I have not heard from him. At Christmas I thought surely he would send a card and write later. Would you write again to see why he has not written or would you just forget? Mother doesn't want me to write again, but I was a little puzzled and decided to seek your advice.

PUZZLED.

I agree with your mother, my dear. He could at least have sent you a card, if he cared to keep up the correspondence.

Wondering

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am a girl 18 years old and am in love with a fellow four years my senior. He tells me he loves me and cares a lot for me. About five months ago I met him at a party and am going with him ever since. A girl he used to go with left him and married another fellow. At present she is not living with him. She claims she loves my friend and if we get married she will kill me or herself. I love him and do not want to give him up. Please tell me what to do.

WONDERING.

The girl is just talking, my dear. If this boy prefers you to her, pay no attention to her threats. But you are too young to be thinking about marrying, you know.

Doubtful Sixteen

DEAR MISS GALE:

I am 16 years old and I keep steady company with a boy five years my senior. I love him dearly, but he has never told me he loves me. The last time that I saw him he told me about the girl he used to go with. He said that every time he comes face to face with her, he has a strange feeling. Do you think he still loves her? He comes to see me at least four times a week and is very affectionate toward me. Now, Miss Gale, I think maybe he still loves this other girl. I don't know if I should stop seeing him or not. Please advise me, Miss Gale.

DOUBTFUL SIXTEEN.

You are much too young to be thinking about love, so accept this boy's friendship if you like him; but don't worry about whether he loves you or not.

JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait. by Elenore MEHERIN

If I Were a Man, Said Jerry, "I'd Play Wide And Reckless

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Jerry King, good-looking and charming and 19, meets Saxon Rhodes, a young architect, and falls in love with him at first sight. Her mother, Marza, warns her that he will make an unsatisfactory husband. Heinie Ross makes love to Jerry in vain. Rhodes shows admiration for heir. She refuses Heinie's marriage proposal and kisses Rhodes rapturously in the moonlight.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

THEY talked about it very gaily. "Pack up your sketch book, Jerry, girl, and we'll hie along. Think of the fun we'd have starving in the Artists' Quarter together!"

In preparation of the blissful adventure they talked French; they read French novels.

They were jesting, of course. But Jerry tucked the hope of it warmly in her thoughts. She gave herself now with fervent devotion to her studies.

As she leaned over her easel Saxon's face and Saxon's voice came to her. She would fancy herself and him sitting at a little table in one of the street cafes of Paris, eating dinner. Rollicking friends—all artists, builders, dreamers—would come singing up to join them.

She would forget to draw, forget the model, forget her classmates and smile dreamily.

One day Basil watched her. He came silently and took the crayon from her hand. "Who is HE?" he murmured, stooping down.

As she was going out that afternoon he blocked her path. "Jerry, I've some wonderful sketches sent from New York. Have a look at them."

She followed to his office, recalling with a twinge the burning excitement of six months previous when she had come with such young girl fervor, meaning to offer Basil her heart. Let him do with it as he would . . . The girl in Basil's arms.

She surveyed the man quietly now, noting with critical coldness the pictures he set before her.

"Jerry," said he, the marvelous eyes turning on her with delicate reproachful tenderness, "why are you treating me so? I've spent frightful hours over it."

Her lips twinkled merrily: "Lonely hours? Basil, dear, am I breaking your heart in a brand new place?"

He flushed darkly: "Should you laugh over this, Jerry? I thought you cared. You said so," he put his hands on her shoulders looking down with a passionate yearning. "You've said it, Jerry, with your own dear, beautiful lips closed on mine. Can I forget this—"

She did not like this picture and frowned.

"All this you said. And leave me to months of dreary desolation."

"And in all the wilderness of women, Basil, could you find no one to soothe you? Not even ONE!"

He seized her, crossing his arms about her: "Jerry! Good Heavens, what has come over you?"

She pushed from him trembling. But the next moment a roguish glint in her eyes: "Old age, Basil, has come over me. But don't despair, Hamlet, dear! New crop of 18-year-olds blooming each year. Thanks for showing me the pictures."

She threw a gay, silver laugh against his face and went swiftly into the sunny radiance. Wondering how Basil North had ever charmed her; how she had ever dwelt in that hot, dark emotion, believing it wonderful and fine.

So different from the uplifting, singing radiance that now swept her; that made her steps as she hurried for a meeting with Saxon, light and swift as wings.

He was at his office waiting for her; wanting to show her plans for a Spanish house he was to build in a perfect setting high among the eucalyptus in Saint Francis Woods.

"Well?" said he, a little nervous as she scanned them so long in silence.

She glanced up to his boyish, expectant face. So open—so young. No play acting here. She grinned.

"They're adorable."

"Why didn't you say it sooner!"

"I was wondering if you couldn't put a big cathedral window here in the living room. Those trees out there are lovelier than any canvas."

"Yes—yes. I've tried it. I worked half of last night, but they want the fire place there—"

"Look," said she, grabbing the pencil from him—

They bent their heads together, sketching—correcting—flaming.

"I've got it!"

He watched her firm little hand: Its fervid strokes.

"You win! You darling. Just the thing—the very thing. Isn't it a love of a place?"

"Yes, and with books in a little niche here—a big old chair there, a screen to give the touch of mystery . . ."

"And you, Jerry, on one side of the fireplace. I on the other!"

"Oh, heavenly, Saxon! If such things only were! And only lasted."

"Sometimes I half think they could be, Jerry."

She closed her eyes on a laugh—laughing while he kissed her. Sweeter than anything she had ever known.

He pulled his hat to a jaunty angle: "Well, woman, I'll blow you to tea. You've done a good day's work for papa."

They went to the Palace. They were scarcely seated and he was just saying: "I feel like a million dollars. And do you know I was absolutely sunk before you came in"—when there came trailing half across the room a loud, dramatic voice.

Jerry knew it instantly. Saxon blushed. Tess Will came sauntering to their table. She greeted Jerry brightly, held Saxon's hand in a long clasp as he stood. Not lowering her tone:

"I'll be after you early. Be ready when I come: Noon tomorrow."

CHAPTER VI.

"WELL, be good—both of you! And don't do half the things I'd do!"

With an air of great eclat, as though she said a thing brilliantly wicked, Tess took herself off.

"Tactless," fumed Saxon, ruffled and annoyed at the meeting.

"Thus she disposes of me!" thought Jerry, burning.

Aloud, in a very flat tone and looking carelessly across the room: "A week-end at the Hopkins. You know—Pebble Beach. I happen to be driving down with Tess."

"I guess that makes me the bee's knees over Saturday and Sunday! But why so mournful because of your polygamy? It's what we're all craving, but only a bachelor may enjoy."

She began humming in a dirge-like cadence Kipling's line:

"And the more that you see of the OTHERS,
"The less you will settle to ONE!"

"Exciting! If I were a man, Saxon, I'd play it wide and reckless!"

"You don't need to be a man to play that game today."

"Yes," said she, "you do. It will always be a man's game. A girl can't get away with it because she can't get away with her fool heart. Sooner or later she falls in love and wants to MARRY the man. Wretched taste, of course. It's like starting a poker game with both parties agreed on beans for stakes. Then when you find yourself winning, demanding that you be paid in dollars. A pike's way—but the way of a woman in love! Always We're not very sportsmanlike and we never will be!"

Autoist Kills Woman Sleep Walker

TROY, Ala., March 2.—(AP.)—An automobilist afraid of ghosts was the possible slayer of Mrs. D. A. McDonald, wife of a dairy farmer, whose body, clad only in a nightgown, was found on a highway here yesterday, police declared. She had been shot to death.

Mrs. McDonald, according to a police theory, was walking in her sleep when a nervous motorist fired at her and then sped away. A small boy's suit was found clasped in the woman's arms, and it was believed that her subconscious mind had prompted her to go, while still asleep, to the side of her four-year-old son who was spending the night at the home of her brother-in-law two miles away.

DOCTOR'S WILD RIDE LAID TO LIQUOR

PLEASED WITH A SKETCH

"Here, I did this sketch of you," Jerry told Saxon. He regarded it, blushing and gleeful.

Muscle Shoals Hailed Neglect Marker by Will

FLORENCE, Ala., March 2.—Spent the day looking at the marvelous Muscle Shoals Dam and projects. Everybody should see it. It's a monument to the neglect of our politicians. It was built to manufacture nitrates for fertilizer. It's the only idle nitrate plant in the world. Every country is building new ones. When you see a $150,000,000 plant laying here idle it gives you an idea of the pull in legislation that the power trust exerts. They say, "If we don't get it nobody else will." The Madden bill settles it right and the farmers will get fertilizers, but you watch the same gang kill it tha killed Walsh's resolution. I'm including Heflin and George.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

SMASHES WAGON IN CHASE

Careening at breakneck speed in a three-wheel automobile, Dr. Frederick A. Hartung, 51, of 543 Brownsville road, led police a wild chase through Oakland and over the South Twenty-second Street Bridge early today, which ended when Patrolman Bernard Renn, in a taxicab, edged the physician into a pole.

Dr. Hartung, suffering, according to the report at Oakland Police Station, from a "probable fracture of ribs on right side and acute alcoholism," is in Homeopathic Hospital today under guard of Patrolman Patrick Fitzgerald. A charge of violating the automobile laws was lodged against him and he will be given a hearing in Traffic Court upon his discharge from the hospital.

Patrolman Renn, also taken to the hospital suffering bruises and lacerations, from sideswiping the physician's car, later was discharged.

Hartung's car, according to the police, crashed into a milk wagon of the Hermes-Groves Dairy Company, at Fifth avenue and Neville street, driven by M. Smith, of 145 Holiay way, knocking several cases of bottled milk to the street.

Without stopping, Hartung piloted his car at a dizzy pace through Oakland and Soho, colliding with several other cars and losing a rear wheel of his machine.

Lieut. Bernard McArdle, of Oakland, pursuing in a police car, was forced into a girder of the bridge. Patrolman Renn, of the South Side, commandeered a cab and overtook Hartung at the south end of the bridge. He leaped to the running board of Hartung's car, but it swerved and the officer was thrown to the street. He resumed the chase and finally captured the fleeing doctor at South Twenty-eighth and Carson streets.

Why We Behave Like Human Beings

By GEORGE A. DORSEY, PH. D., LL. D.

Without Love Man's World Soon Would Stop; Sex Fundamental Element of All Life

The fascinating story of Adrenin was told in yesterday's chapter of "Why We Behave Like Human Beings" in The Sun-Telegraph. From this most powerful drug in the human system emotional behavior "gets its kick." It bucks up man, saves him in emergencies, moves cowards to fight. Author Dorsey also told how sugar is the best fighting fuel.

Gonads Necessary to the Species

CHAPTER 20.

GONADS is Greek for seeds. As the organs or glands of reproduction of both sexes produce seeds, it is a convenient and polite word. But the newspapers in referring to gonad operations, rejuvenescence, etc., always speak of "glands."

GEORGE A. DORSEY

Psychology has diagnosed the "impurity complex" and shown us what is back of the blatant prude who advertises his or her "purity." It has also shown that the purity of the ignorant, when purchased at the price of a stifled natural curiosity, is not a safe and sane "purity." The study of biology has begun to break down this impurity complex and the unholy, unnatural doctrine begun by early Christian monks that the sex impulse is man's sign of degradation and the source of his most devilish energy. Nature knows better.

Sex is a primary biologic function of all life above the lowest. Its characters and qualities have an ancient lineage. Its impulse is as real as is the force which makes the tides to ebb and flow. It has profoundly influenced structure and behavior. It is a fundamental element of all higher life; its external characters a neat advertising dodge of Nature.

Our Debt to Sex

To sex we owe more than poetry; we owe the song of birds, all vocal music and the voice itself, the plumage that comes to supreme glory in the bird of paradise, the mane of the lion, the tresses of women, the blush of the maiden, the beard of men, and all higher forms of life in plant and animal world. It is woven into every fabric of human life and lays its finger on every custom. To the debit side of the sex account we must charge many silly stupidities and some of the foulest injustices which go to make the thing we call human culture the amazing and variegated mosaic that it is.

We are more enlightened than we were, but we have not yet reached the stage where the mere mention of sex will not provoke some one to respond with a reproach or an insult. Whole blocks on Main Street assume that "sex knowledge" is of questionable propriety, or, at best, to be kept dark in "doctor books," or regard it as the banal possession of the frankly shameless.

As a result, most pseudo-scientific "sex" literature slops over into the emotions and lets facts alone, or presents facts under disguises. Much of it has no biologic background or anything of the laws of life which govern man on less than every living thing.

It is fear (sometimes called "reverence") that makes us "let sex alone." It is mock modesty and foolish shame, masquerading under the name "decency," that compels museums to clothe marble Fauns and plaster Joves and bronze Cupids with plaster-of-Paris fig leaves.

Absurd Paradox

Back of much of this confusion and nonsense is the paradox which culminated in Puritanism: Marriage is a divine institution and the god of love is a saint, but sex is shameful and Cupid is a carnal beast.

Man, is "high," "animals" are "low"—without minds and, of course, can have no "souls." We have. Ours is a "divine" parentage, our bodies "sacred." Hence art, from Phidian sculpture to sophomoric poem, tends to the greater glory of man; men and women more like gods and goddesses; gods and goddesses glorified men and women.

And so it came about that the commonest thing in nature next to keeping alive became invested with the sanctity of heaven. Love begins with a capital "L" because it is sacred. So it is. Without it the world of man stops. There would be no more fishes in the sea if the males did not like the females. Love is fine. Put it on a pedestal, magnify it, glorify it, deify it. But why leave Cupid on the pedestal?

To worship him blindly is on a par with any other fetishism, and quite as intelligent. Take him down and dust him off, repair his broken ears, mend his battered nose, refeather his arrows and restring his bow. Why not have a look at him? What is he made of?

Differences

Certain glands are essential to life. Their removal is followed by death. Not so the gonads proper. They may be removed, in fact are constantly being removed—especially those of women—in the operating rooms. What happens? The patient lives. The gonads are not necessary for individual life, only for that of the race or species.

Physical differences between men and women are sexual. There are primary and secondary differences. The secondary characters begin to assume definite form in both sexes at the beginning of puberty. These characters are by-products of the male and female gonads.

The gonads are like true duct glands in that they discharge their secretion through ducts, but this secretion, unlike that of other duct glands, is not discharged into and consumed by the parent body. The gonads have an additional function: they secrete a hormone which regulates the appearance and growth of the secondary characters and supplies the impulse back of sex behavior. In this they are like true endocrines, which deliver their regulating secretions direct to the blood stream. Thus the gonads are also glands of internal secretion.

For ages it has been known that boys or girls deprived of their gonads before puberty develop into "womanly" men or "manly" women and throughout life retain an infantile type of body. Eunuchs, created for religious and social ends, develop neither the voice nor the beard of men; in women similarly altered the mammary glands remain undeveloped, their bodies do not become so feminine.

SIDE-WALKS OF PITTSBURGH

by HAVEY J. BOYLE

"MY DEAR SIR: I read in your column recently your story about the circus publicity counsellor who proffered the bill signed by Pawnee Bill at Newell's bar. I am not surprised that the alert lager jerker spurned the currency, especially since he was told Pawnee Bill's right name was W. F. Lillie.

"I once was employed by Maj. Lillie for a half day, 18 or more years ago, carrying aqua pura to slake the thirst of the pair of crow-bait pachyderms that comprised the major part of the oriental section of his 'Great Far East' which supplemented the Wild West. I remember him as though it were yesterday.

"A tall erect man with a black mustache almost half as wide as the mud-colored sombrero from which hung his long, jet black curls

He rode in a great, yellowish saddle trimmed with silver upon a white horse with pinkish nostrils. Behind him came the feathered red-men, wrapped in blankets on their scrawny pintos for it was April or early in May; the tobacco-chewing cowboys, lariats hanging from their pommels; Mexican greasers trying to look treacherous; a troop of turbaned Cossacks and a squad of their late foes, the Japs.

"Then the Oriental division: The elephants, the sultan under a parasol, fanned languidly with huge palms by two alleged Nubian slaves, six of his wives lying about on the threadbare cushions of brilliant hue.

"I will never forget the man on the white horse who led that parade past my wondering eyes and I will never forget his name, which was not William F. Lillie, but Maj. Gordon W. Lillie. The bartender cannot be blamed, therefore, if they told him that Pawnee Bill's man was William F. Lillie. With these words, I will submerge.

"A NORTH SIDE READER."

"P. S. I read your valuable column every day and sometimes it is very good.

IN CONNECTION with the Newell story, by the way, Mr. Gus Gleason, of Johnstown, wants to know how in the world a story of Newell's could be written without mentioning Mr. Michael Burke, better known as Mike Burke, who was the head bartender for some 18 years or so.

All that we know of Newell's is hearsay, as the institution was in its heyday at a time when we were more interested in finding new ways to play hook, perfecting our acumen in trading aggies and trying to evade those horrible ceremonies coincident with the arrival of Saturday: (a) the bath and (b) the brushing of clothes and shining of shoes for the next day's soul-searching in church.

AT A lunch table the other day Billy Ries, who takes care of widows and orphans by seeing that husbands take out sufficient insurance, asked if we would stop at his table to meet Mr. Flaherty, prominent Philadelphian, here for a visit. Mr. Flaherty, it developed, has read a Shakespearean play every day for the last 40 years. He carries the volume of the Bard with him—and he carries it in his vest pocket. The edition in question is gotten out in volumes (a paradoxical term in this instance) no larger as to length than a special delivery stamp. Mr. Flaherty had also read many of the lives, but like nearly everyone else knew little about the boyhood of the London actor and Stratford poet.

He tells of the one about the fellow in the new Ford who at 80 miles an hour was passing a very expensive machine. JERRY The Epic of a Girl Who Had to Wait. by Elenore MEHERIN

If I Were a Man, Said Jerry, "I'd Play Wide And Reckless

"Erudite and poetic, aren't you? But a little liar, none the less. The girls are playing the game in your generation. And they aren't marrying us."

Boast while you may! At the ripe old age of 24. We're stepping along—yes. But the free ladies are still the minority—a noisy minority that sounds like a great popular voice. But a minority. For the one girl who does, there are dozens who don't. They fourflush brilliantly through the first round—a kiss and such. But the first round is the last!"

Said he with a teasing chuckle: "That depends on the finesse of the man who calls the bluff."

Over her tea cup, Jerry grinned in his face: "Whooppee, Casanova, the second! May God deliver all lady Saint Anthonys from your wiles."

She was thinking hotly: "Damn Tess Willi for spoiling our lovely hour!"

They chatted on—the ready slang coming happily to her tongue.

But each time she looked in Saxon's winning eyes she recalled him in the moment when he stopped and gave that long, rapt kiss to Tess.

Did he also say to Tess the mad, sweet words he murmured to Jerry?

"I wish I'd never met him," she thought, blazing. "I wish I could get out of this—OUT OF IT!"

But she went wondering about the living room that evening. And everywhere she went Saxon's eyes and Saxon's voice followed.

She touched the books that had been her company in a lonely, happy childhood. What thrilling pictures she had drawn of her future as she devoured history and romance. She would be brilliant as Madame de Stael; fascinating as Mary Queen of Scots.

At 17, watching Marza with smothered pain and wonder she had longed for the time men would kneel at her feet—handsome, kingly men. Always they at her feet. Never she at theirs!

And now—

Suddenly she said to Marza, "Were you terribly in love with my father so that you thought you would just melt away longing for him?"

Marza, with her feet on a chair smoked dreamily—a poetic figure. She answered with disturbing intuition:

"You'll get over it, Pet. Every girl at 19 goes through it. Inevitable as the measles."

"You might answer the question in a kind way! I'm looking for information. Not condolence!" Flashing with sore pride, Jerry glanced at her mother.

Marza was exceedingly pale—drained even to the lips. It seemed to Jerry her voice had a stricken tone.

"I was just 17 when I married your father. You were born before I was 18. I was not wildly in love with him—then or ever."

"Oh, Marza! Then you met the real man a few years later? You never told me this. You met him and loved him wildly? But it was too late?"

Marza measured her slowly. "When you meet the real man, it is never too late."

She turned the page of her book. Very coolly. Very quietly. No color came back to her cheeks. And for the next hour she uttered no word. She turned no page. She sat there motionless as though she had turned to stone.

Jerry had the frightened sense of tumbling on a deep and scarring tragedy.

Marza sat quiet like this when those letters came from Chicago from her old sister, to whom she sent large checks each month and whose monthly letters made Marza distracted and quiet. Jerry had never seen this sister of her mother's. But each year Marza went to visit her.

And often the girl came home to find Marza tearing a letter to pieces. Then she would sit the whole evening, sunk in a frightful gloom.

Lily Tells Drummond That She Can't Marry Him

She had telephoned him at noon that she would be there at that time, and at exactly one minute after the hour he appeared in the doorway.

Lily looked him over. His skin, that always was fresh and pink as if it had just been massaged, his sleek hair and neatly-trimmed little mustache, his perfectly-pressed clothes and bright silk tie. . . There was no doubt that he was very good looking, and that he did not look anywhere near his age.

He came across the sidewalk to her, and his eyes seemed to measure her as if he did not understand her. He opened the door of her father's car, dusty and rain-spattered from standing for days in the France's side yard.

"What will we do with your car? I have mine here, too," he wanted to know, and then Lily saw that his own car had come up alongside hers, with his Japanese chauffeur at the wheel.

"Can't you have your man drive this car to your house? And then we can go in yours together," Lily suggested to him. And in three minutes they were in it, and starting out from the packed, no business district towards the wide lawns and trees and spacious houses of the fashionable suburbs that lay to the west of the town.

"I want to see you in your own house today," she had said to him over the telephone that noon. "I'll come down to your office for you at 5 and we'll drive out together, eh, what? There's something I want to say to you."

She knew that he was curious to hear what she had to tell him. She could feel his questioning eyes on her face every now and then as he steered the car through the late afternoon traffic.

"I suppose you thought I was insane when you heard I'd gone down to Pat's house," she began, when they were turning into the driveway of his big, proud house, set in its gardens like a jewel. "I wrote you two letters, but I didn't send either one. I kne you'd understand that I felt I had to go, just because Pat was my husband once upon a time."

He gave her a sharp look as he helped her out of the car. "Was that why you went?" he asked.

"Yes—that was why I went, in the beginning," Lily said, going up the steps beside him.

Ito, in his white linen jacket, flung open the front door and his face was radiant with a smile of welcome that crinkled up his almond-shaped ey at the corners and seemed to squeeze the rest of his face into a tight ball.

"Let's have some tea or something, shall we?" asked Staley, and they went into the big living room on the left side of the hall. It was filled with a heavy sweet odor of fresh-cut roses, and the late afternoon sunlight gilded it with magic.

They sat down on a wide couch in the bay window, and Ito brought tea in with unbelievable swiftness.

"I phoned to tell him you were coming this afternoon," Staley said, in his quiet, courteous way, watching Lily pour tea for herself and a cocktail from a frosted silver shaker for him. "Aren't you drinking?"

Lily shook her head and tried to smile. "No—I'm a reformed character, Staley," she told him. "That's part of what I wanted to tell you today."

Staley raised his eyebrows and took three or four roses from a vase on the smoking table beside the lounge where they sat.

"Put these on, dear," he said. "Or—turn around and I'll pin them on your coat for you."

Lily held out her hand for them. "Let me take them," she said, not wanting him to touch her. She swung around and faced him squarely.

"Please listen to me. I told you I was a reformed character," she said, flushing with embarrassment. It was going to be painfully difficult to say all the things that were in her mind to Staley.

"Let me start from the beginning." She cleared her throat. "I told you I went down to the France's house because I thought I ought to be there if Pat died—because it would look better if I were there."

Staley nodded and she went on. "Well, that isn't why I went. I thought it was the reason, but it wasn't. I went because I still loved him. I was angry with him, and I hated him, but I loved him, too."

She tossed her head. "I know you despise me for being like that, Staley, and I don't blame you. I've been unfair to you. I made up my mind to marry you twice, not because I cared so very much about you, but because of—oh, I may as well be honest—because of all this—"

Her hands took in the big room with a quick sweep. Her eyes ran over the fresh flowers, the deep-piled rugs, the hand-carved furniture, the heavy silk window curtains, tied back to show the gardens and the velvety lawns outside.

"I came here today to look at it all again," she explained, determined to tell him everything. "I wanted to ride in your car again and see all of the things that are yours and would be mine if that divorce of mine was granted and I married you. I wanted to look at it all and be sure that I didn't want it."

"And I don't," she told him gravely, after a second's pause. "I don't. I know I'll be a free woman in a while, for I'm going to go ahead and get it in case Pat wants to marry that Ertz woman—and I think he does. But I'll never be married to you, or to anybody, Staley. Never."

She stood up to go.

CHAPTER LXVII.

STALEY shot her a disgusted look. His lips curled back scornfully, under his little mustache that always made Lily think of Prince Danilo's mustache in "The Merry Widow."

"You'll never marry anybody!" he scoffed. "What's the point in telling me any more takes like that, Lily? You know doggoned well that you're going to walk straight out of this house and back to that cab driver!"

"I'm not!" She denied it furiously. "I'm going back to the house, but only because I've promised myself to stay there until Pat's better—and he's really better now. I'll probably leave tomorrow, as a matter of fact."

Staley said nothing, but just stood, with his hands in his well-tailored pockets, watching her with haggard eyes.

"And where are you going when you leave there? Back to your father's house?" he asked. And suddenly he took his hands out of his pockets and came a step nearer her. He put his arms around her. "Don't be a fool, Lily. You can't go back there and live with your people. There's nothing for you there. You'd better come down to earth and tell me you're going to marry me as soon as you're free. Why, you belong in this house—"

He stopped abruptly as she pushed him away from her. "No use talking to me," she said. "I know what I'm going to do. I'm going to be of some use in the world to somebody. Either I'm going to keep house for Dad and Mother, or I'm going to get a job."

She appealed to him. "Can't you see how useless I've always been?" she asked him. "I've been worse than useless. I've lied to you from the time I first knew you, and I've been dishonest with lots of other people. I've been lazy and good for nothing. . . . You ought to know what they think of me down in Pat's neighborhood. There's a terrible girl there named Frazier—a bleached blonde, who is just as hard-boiled as anything—and they class me with her! They're right, too."

Staley gave a bark of laughter. "Well, I'm glad to know what you like at last," he said. "Evidently the way to make a ten-strike with you is to treat you badly and tell you how tough you are! It's too bad I didn't find that out long ago. They work you, too, don't they? You never had hands like those before."

"Oh, yes, I did—when I was keeping house," Lily reminded him. "However, I don't like to be badly treated, Staley. I hate it. You see, none of the France family except Pat's sister, Florence, wanted me there during all this illness. And they haven't been nice to me. They realized that I wasn't going to leave while Pat was in danger, so they made the best of it. But no one could say they were nice to me, and no one could say I enjoyed it, either."

Staley did not walk with her to the door when she started away a moment later. He stood in the middle of his beautiful and expensive room and watched her from under scowling brows.

"I don't get all this," his voice came to her, as she stood on the threshold. "But somehow or other, you certainly have made a fool of me, as I never thought any woman could." There was bitterness in every syllable.

Lily did not look back at him, but she threw him one sentence over her shoulder. "I'm sorry—and if it's any comfort to you, I've made a bigger fool of myself."

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

Philip Veritzen Consents to Meet Noel and Promises to Be Hypocritically Cordial

I WAS not poised enough to conceal my stare of astonishment at Philip Veritzen's exclamation of "the blind young idiot," when I told h'm that Noel had paid no attention to Miss Lincoln whatever, preferring Mary Harrison. But my employer patently cared nothing for anyone's opinion but his own. For a minute or two longer he looked steadily at me, but I knew that he really was not seeing me at all, and his fingers kept up their tatoo against the palm of his other hand. Suddenly, however, he straightened his body, stopped the tapping of his chair, becoming in an instant the suave, courteous gentleman of all my previous experience with him.

"I must beg your pardon for my delay in answering you," he said. "By all means assure my young cub that I have no objection to meeting him at dinner. Tell him I shall greet him as if we were in the habit of meeting every day, and I shall expect the same hypocracy from him. He, of course, will understand that the meeting will not alter our relations."

For an instant I had the undignified wish to box my employer's well-formed ears. Then the realization that I had succeeded in the thing I had set out to do came to me and I smothered my anger beneath a cushion of platitudes.

"I am sure he will do exactly as you wish," I said, "and I want to thank you so much for your decision."

I rose from my chair, the signal which I knew Lillian outside, was waiting for. The next instant she appeared at the door of the living-room, giving Mr. Veritzen no opportunity for the gallant speech for which he evidently was primed.

"You people are missing the most marvelous sunset!" she said. "Come on out with the rest of us and indulge your souls."

"I am afraid I shall have to postpone my soul refreshment for a minute or two," I said. "I have an errand to which I must attend at once. But don't let Mr. Veritzen miss it. I'll be out presently."

"I'll save a box for you right next to Phil's and mine," Lillian promised, laughingly, with apparently no thought in her mind save the view she was lauding. But as she left the room she shot a quick glance at me, and I gave her our old unobtrusive signal which meant that I had succeeded in my mission.

I waited only until they had left the room before hurrying to the kitchen where Jim was helping Katie.

"Can you spare Jim for 10 minutes, probably less?" I asked a bit dubiously, for there was a portentous frown upon Katie's face and Jim looked a bit sullen. That one of their rare conjugal rows was on the tapis, I guessed, and also Knew that the blame probably lay with Katie. Quick, clever, garrulous and distinctly "bossy," she is the direct antithesis of her slow, stolid, but sterling and affectionate husband. His great admiration for her has led him to submit good-naturedly to a good deal of nagging at Katie's hands, but once in a while when she goes too far, he indulges himself in a fit of sullenness which is proof against temper, wiles and cajolery until it wears off.

What Did Noah Look Like? Is Question Confronting Movie Men Planning Biblical Play

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, March 2.

MORE years ago than most of us care to remember, David Belasco produced a play called "The Easiest Way." In this day, when sex is so freely discussed, it would probably not cause much of a ripple on the stage. But when Frances Starr said "I am going to Rector's—and to h—l," the audience sat up and gasped. Now Myron Selznick and Felix Young, two youthful producers, are about to revive "The Easiest Way" for the cinema.

The subject—and you don't need much imagination to guess what it is after reading the title, will always be good. Clara Kimball Young proved it when she made a movie based on this same Belasco play about 10 years ago.

The youthful firm of Selznick and Young is soaring high for this is their first movie. They have engaged Ruth Chatterton for the role Frances Starr created on the stage and Noah Beery for the man about town, played with such eclat by Joseph Kilgour, and they have corralled a gifted director, W. K. Howard.

What did Noah look like? Will some of the Biblical students please step forward and enlighten Warner Brothers. Sixty-five Biblical works have been read and offered no solution. All they know about Noah is that he went out and preached the goodness of the world and did his best to get people away from sin. Claude Gillingwater and Henry Walthall have been mentioned as likely prospects for old man Noah. It is reasonably certain that Dolores Costello will have one of the leading roles in "Noah's Ark" and that Louis Fazenda will have another. Both of these, I hear, have been approved by Michael Curtiz, the director, who begins work sometime next month. But Noah still remains the mystery.

One of those rumors that makes life in Hollywood so interesting came to my ears today. Betty Compson has been chosen by George Fitzmaurice to play one of the important feminine roles in "The Barker," opposite Milton Sills. Betty is one of the pioneers on the screen who can always be depended upon to add color to any role. Let us hope that George Fitzmaurice is not too carried away by his love of splendor to do right by "The Barker," which should be one of Milton Sills' best pictures.

All the way from London comes a cable from Marshall Neilan telling about his plans. Mickey digs down in the old pocket and doesn't care how much it costs, for without limiting himself he tells us that he won't be back to this country. He and Al Woods are going to make a series of pictures. Blanche Sweet, Mickey says, is perfectly delighted at the chance to play "The Green Hat." Long, long ago there was talk that she would play Iris March. Then came the Hays ban. But "Sadie Thompson" proves these censorial films can be made and still retain interest. Blanche will be lovely as the mad Iris. There are other Woods' plays that have been on the list of forbidden property that will now see the light of day.

DENY FILM TRUST AT SENATE QUIZ

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Charges of a "movie monopoly" controlling the distribution of films by the "Block-booking system" were pretty generally exploded before the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee yesterday.

Testifying against the Brookhart anti-block booking bill, Sidney R. Kent, general sales manager of the Paramount-Famous Players-Lasky organization, testified that only about 5 per cent of the distributors using their productions buy 100 per cent of their films by block booking.

Likewise Kent denied that his organization, recognized as the largest in the industry, has a fixed rule of "all or none" by which exhibitors are compelled to buy all their films en bloc or else receive none.

Kent went a step further by suggesting that the remedy will not be found by government regulation, but by playing pictures on a percentage basis. There is a trend in this direction, Kent added, because it would put the greatest penalty on productions that are not successful at the box office.

Beauty No Asset to These Two Film Actors

Louis Wolheim, who plays one of the most important roles in John Barrymore's latest United Artists picture, "Tempest," rejoices in the fact that there is at least one actor in the feature who has him beat for homeliness.

Wolheim's villainous visage, famous on the speaking stage for his characters of Captain Flagg in "What Price Glory" and the starring role in "The Hairy Ape," as well as familiar to screen fans the world over, is beautiful compared to the face of Dick Sutherland, who is one of the terrorist leaders in "Tempest," an original story of the Russian revolution.

Sutherland has no competitors as the super-ugly man of the entire film colony. He is so homely that when he walks down the Hollywood boulevard, where strange sights are commonplace, people turn to stare at him as though fascinated. But his ugliness is his fortune, and he has capitalized on it during the past several years.

Picture-goers will remember Sutherland in particular for his characterization of the executioner in Barrimore's first United Artists picture, "The Beloved Rogue," and for his role of the ugly tramp in Harold Lloyd's comedy "Grandma's Boy."

COLOR BEARER IN 46 CIVIL WAR FIGHTS DIES

MARTINS FERRY, O., March 2.—Holden Johnson, 87, color bearer for the Twenty-ninth Massachusetts Infantry in 46 engagements in the Civil War, died yesterday after a brief illness. Johnson was wounded at Vicksburg. He went out to the battlefield and recovered the flag after three men who had succeeded him as color bearers had been shot down.

Economist Suggests Duck for Sunday

By PRUDENCE PENNY

ROAST duck is a delicious change for the Sunday menu. It should come from the butcher cleaned and with the head and feet removed, unless you give special orders to have it otherwise. Some housewives prefer to personally clean fowls that are to grace the home table.

Place duck on rack in roasting pan, sprinkle with salt and pepper and dredge with flour. Lay two very thin strips of bacon across the breast and bake in a very hot oven for an hour to a little longer, if it is a large bird. It may be stuffed with apples cored, pared and cut in quarters, or cooked without dressing, as you prefer.

Parboil sweet potatoes, remove skins and cut in slices. Cut slices of canned pineapple in halves, lay alternate slices of sweet potato and pineapple in a buttered baking dish. Add half a cup of sugar to the pineapple juice and cook down to half a cupful. Pour over pineapple and potato, dot the dish with butter and brown under the broiler.

PREPARING CAULIFLOWER—Soak a head of cauliflower in cold salt water for half an hour before cooking. Cover with boiling salted water and boil for 20 minutes. Serve with melted butter. If the cauliflower is cut in small sections a smaller amount of water can be used, and it is never wise to "drown" your vegetables.

Get vanilla ice cream and serve over it the following sauce: Melt a teaspoonful of butter in a saucepan and blend in a heaping teaspoonful of flour, a tablespoonful of sugar and an ounce of melted bitter chocolate. Slowly add one cup of milk and keep hot in a double boiler until ready to serve.

LENTEN DISHES

I AM sure suggestions for meatless main dishes will be appreciated, and I have gathered up some rather novel egg dishes that will mean nourishing meals for meatless days.

EGGS WITH MUSHROOMS—Sautee one quarter of a pound of mushrooms in butter for 10 minutes, pour half a cup of cream into the pan and when heated through it is ready to serve.

In the meantime poach eggs, one or two to each person, depending on the appetites of the family, place the eggs on buttered toast rounds, pour the mushroom sauce around them and serve with a combination salad.

EGGS A LA CREOLE—Make depressions in a mound of rice, and break eggs one at a time in a saucer and slip into the depressions. Dot rice and eggs with butter and bake in the oven until eggs are set.

Make a creole sauce, by sauteeing two tablespoonfuls of green pepper, one tablespoonful of pimiento, one tablespoonful of onion and one clove of garlic in two tablespoonfuls of olive oil. The onion and garlic should be minced very fine, the pimiento and green pepper chopped coarsely. When the vegetables are tender add two cups of stewed tomatoes and simmer for about 10 minutes. A little flour may be sprinkled over the top and stirred in if you like the sauce thickened a bit. Serve the sauce over the baked eggs and a watercress salad would be nice with this dish.

BAKED EGGS ON THE HALF SHELL—Bake large potatoes until mealy. Cut in half, remove the inside. Put half away to use for fried potatoes next day, mash the other half and add the following: Sautee one teaspoonful each of finely minced onion, celery and green pepper in three tablespoonfuls of bacon drippings. When the vegetables are tender mash in drippings and all with the potato. Put back in the shell, not fully filling it. Break an egg into each half shell, dot with butter, sprinkle with parmesan cheese and a little salt and paprika, return to the oven until the eggs are set and serve with a vegetable salad.

CHEESE CAKE—A reader has sent in an old family recipe for cheese cake. It's for just the right kind of dainty to paste in your scrap books.

ONE tablespoonful of butter, one egg, one teaspoonful of baking powder and one-half cup of granulated sugar, enough flour to make a dough that does not stick to the hands. This is the crust for the cheese cake. Roll it out and line a spring form with the dough.

For the filling, one pound of pot cheese, the yolks of five eggs, stirred in one by one; one cup of granulated sugar, three tablespoonsful of flour and one pint of sweet cream. Mix all together, then beat the whites of the five eggs and stir them in. Pour the filling into the spring form and bake one hour.

FOR A. O. K.—Write again and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. I will be glad to send you recipe for baked beans.

* * *

TRIPS FOR HEALTH—Mrs. E. A. has been ordered to take an ocean trip. Her ambition is to visit her native Italy. Special rates are being offered right now on a particularly lovely Mediterranean trip, and if she will send me a note enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope I will be delighted to send a personal letter telling her more about it. Ask, too, for my leaflet on proper attire and up to date luggage for traveling.

HOME RECIPES—Here are some recipes for children's foods which I am sure you will find easy to make and enjoyable to them:

GRAHAM MUFFINS—One egg, ¼ cup condensed milk, ¾ cup water, 1 cup graham flour, 1 cup white flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 2 tablespoons melted butter.

Beat the egg, add the milk and the water and the dry ingredients which you have sifted together. Stir in the melted butter and beat well. Pour into greased tins and bake for 25 minutes in a hot oven.

OATMEAL BREAD—One and ½ cups boiling water, 2 cups unsooked oatmeal, ½ cup molasses, ½ tablespoon salt, ¼ cup condensed milk, 1 tablespoon of butter, 1 cake of compressed yeast dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water, 5 cups white flour.

Add the boiling water to the oatmeal and let it stand for 1 hour. Then add the molasses and the milk, the salt, butter and dissolved yeast and the flour. Mix well and let rise until it doubles its bulk. Knead thoroughly, turn into greased bread pans, let rise again and bake. This will make 2 loaves.

SUGAR COOKIES—One-half cup butter, ¾ cup sugar, 1 egg, 2 tablespoons condensed milk, ⅓ cup water, 2½ cups flour, 2 tablespoons of baking powder, 1-6 teaspoon of nutmeg, ¼ teaspoon salt.

Cream the butter and the sugar, add the beaten egg, the milk, the water and the dry ingredients sifted. Drop from a spoon on a greased tin. Bake in a slow oven for 15 minutes.

BAKED CUSTARD — One cup milk, 1 egg, ¼ teaspoon vanilla, 1-16 teaspoon nutmeg. Beat the egg and add the milk slowly, continuing the beating. Add the flavoring. Pour into individual cups. Set them into a pan of boiling water, and bake in a moderate oven. When a knife inserted in the middle of a custard comes out clean, the product is done.

"SURE THING" CAKE—One-fourth cup butter, 1 cup sugar, 1 egg yolk, ½ cup cocoa, 1½ cups sweet milk, 2 cups pastry flour, 1½ teaspoons baking powder, ½ teaspoon soda, 1 egg white.

Work the butter until creamy and add the sugar gradually, then add well-beaten egg-yolk and the cocoa. Mix and sift the flour, baking powder and soda, and add alternately with milk to the first mixture. Beat thoroughly and add the stiffly beaten egg-white. Turn into a buttered and floured cake pan, and bake in a moderate oven about 40 minutes.

CHOCOLATE JELLY—One pint of boiling water, a pinch of salt, 1 ounce of chocolate, 2 tablespoons of gelatine, 1-3 cup sugar and 1 teaspoon of vanilla.

Put the water, salt and chocolate in a saucepan. Cook, stirring until the chocolate melt., then boil from three to five minutes. Soak the gelatine in a little cold water until soft and then pour the boiling mixture over it. Stir until dissolved and then add the sugar and the vanilla. Pour into a mold and set aside to harden. Serve with cream and powdered sugar or with sweetened whipped cream.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE — Four cups of thin cream, two ounces of chocolate, one-half cup powdered sugar, one-quarter tablespoon granulated gelatine, 2 tablespoons boiling water, one-quarter cup granulated sugar, one teaspoon vanilla.

Whip the cream to a stiff froth, then pour off any liquid that remains. Melt the chocolate, add the powdered sugar and stir in gradually the cream that would not whip. Stir over the fire until boiling, then add the gelatine dissolved in the boiling water, the granulated sugar and the vanilla. Strain the cooked mixture into a bowl set in a pan of ice water. Stir constantly until the mixture thickens and then fold the whipped cream.

Turn into a chilled mold, fill to overflowing, cover with buttered paper (butter side up) adjust cover, pack in salt and ice, using two parts finely crushed ice to one part salt, and let stand three hours. Drain off the water, repack in ice and salt and let stand an hour longer.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Informal Parties and Small Weddings Only Events Countenanced By Social Season During Lent

ALTHOUGH the Lenten season is seldom observed nowadays with the austere fervor of our grandparents, still society accepts the convention that no large society affairs shall be planned for any of the 40 days preceding Easter. Informal parties are permissible, public opinion concedes, and occasionally there are weddings, but invariably they are small ones.

Such a typical Lenten wedding was that of Mrs. Penelope Hoopes Fitler, daughter of Mrs. William Hoopes of the Ruskin, and Bennett Rodgers, son of Mrs. William Blackstock Rodgers of Woodland road, which took place yesterday. Mr. Rodgers is a Yale man.

In the older civilizations the patrons of the arts were usually nobles, princes or kings. A few women did encourage the artists of the past, to be sure, but they were the exception. Today the situation is reversed, particularly in America. The men, even after their fortunes are attained, still continue to work in accordance with the unwritten code of today. The women now are the ones who have the leisure for such sponsoring of musicians, of painters and of writers.

Yesterday morning, in the home of Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, in Wilkins avenue, the second in a series of musicales was given—musicians sponsored by a group of women headed by Mrs. Allderdice and given by music lovers who are not professionals. The first of these morning musicales was given in Mrs. Allderdice's home on February 1, and the next is scheduled for April 3 in the home of Mrs. John E. Nelson, in North Murtland avenue.

Yesterday's program was, according to all reports, an exceptionally good one, and brought forth some musical talent which had been somewhat hidden "under a bushel" before. There was a trio consisting of Mrs. Howard A. Noble, violinist; Mrs. Christine Adams Jones, 'cellist, and Mrs. Virginia Brown Wilharm, pianist, and Mrs. F. W. Edmundson sang. Mrs. C. H. Henninger gave several piano numbers, and there were songs by a quartet of women's voices, including Mrs. Walter E. Close, Mrs. William O'Lee, Mrs. J. C. Lockhart and Mrs. Fitzhugh Lee, with Mrs. Adelaine Merrill Biddle as accompanist.

As a special addition to the program, Eelen Glenn-Campbell, formerly of Glasgow, but who is now living in Pittsburgh, sang. Miss Campbell has been singing in opera in Milan, where she recently completed her voice work and opera coaching.

On the night before the musicale—that is, Wednesday night—Mrs. Allderdice gave a private musicale in her home to present Miss Campbell, who sang several arias as well as Scotch and English songs, accompanied by Miss Gazella Palles.

Those of society people who have decided to stay north for the winter are not the only ones taking an interests in the arts. Many of Pittsburgh's prominent hostesses spending the season at Palm Beach have proved that. Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Kay gave a reception Tuesday night in their home on Ocean boulevard following the fourth concert of the Society of the Arts. Over 100 members of the society and their guests attended. A buffet supper was served.

Mrs. Henry R. Rea entertained a party in her box, as did the Kays. The James Francis Burkes were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Shepard, Jr.

Mrs. Kay is also a member of the committee which has sponsored a series of five current event lectures given at the Beach. The final lecture of this series was given Wednesday by Dr. David Seabury. Following the lecture was a dinner with the Henry Seligmans as hosts. The guests included the Alfred G. Kays.

Mrs. Henry Hoffstot, of Dunmoyle street, is the guest of Mrs. Henry Phipps at her Palm Beach home, "Villa Artemis." Mrs. Phillips gave a small tea Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. Hoffstot. Other Pittsburgh women present were, I hear, Mrs. Robert Carson, Jr., and Mrs. John G. Frazer.

Richard King Mellon is regarded with much favor by Palm Beach hostesses. And hardly a dinner is given at which he is not a guest. He was at a dinner Mrs. Raymond T. Baker gave Tuesday night at the Beach Club.

* * *

Mrs. Henry R. Rea is another much entertained Pittsburgher, as one might expect. Mrs. Hugh Dillman gave a luncheon at Playa Riente recently, which Mrs. Rea attended.

Thomas Mellon and Mrs. Robert Carson, Jr., were among the guests from Pittsburgh, I understand, at a luncheon given by Robert W. Evans at the Whitehall.

* * *

Mrs. William Christopher Robinson is another social leader of Pittsburgh and Sewickley who has been at Palm Beach. She and her children, Alexander and Althea Robinson, have been guests of Mrs. Alexander Laughlin, Jr., at the White House. They left the southern resort on Wednesday to return North.

To avoid a conflict of the biweekly bridge luncheons at the Country Club of Allegheny County with the meetings of the Tuesday Musical Club, the committee has decided to hold an extra party on next Tuesday, and continue the regular luncheons on alternate Tuesdays thereafter. The hostesses for March are Mrs. Clark Hammond, chairman; Mrs. Edwin Hodge, Jr., Mrs. J. E. McLain, Mrs. H. S. Nicholson, Mrs. James Patterson, Mrs. Eugene S. Reilly and Mrs. L. H. Burnett.

Announcement has been made of the marriage of Miss Goldye Cohen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julius Cohen, of Bartlett street, and Arthur Preston Miller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Max Miller, of Scottdale, which was solemnized Tuesday night in the Cohen home. Miss Marcella Cohen was her sister's maid of honor and Dr. Mortimer Cohen was best man. After a southern trip, Mr. and Mrs. Miller will be at home in Scottdale.

Miss Grayce Guffey and Mrs. Carl F. Bauer, Jr., assisted by Miss Edna Cunningham, Mrs. Otto Paul Swartz, Miss Martha Mateer and Miss Viola Stott, are making plans for a dinner dance to be held March 30 in Webster Hall by the alumnae chapter of the Alpha Kappa Phi fraternity.

CHARTIERS CLUB GUESTS OF W. LIBERTY MOTHERS

A hundred or so members of the Chartiers Women's Clubs' Association tolled up the long Capitol avenue hill to the Paul Presbyterian Church yesterday to be guests of the West Liberty Mothers' Club. Some fine reports, notably that of the Beechview Women's Civil Club, were heard in the morning and after luncheon, served by the Ladies' Aid Society of the church, there was a program in charge of Mrs. A. A. Archer. The children in several grades of the West Liberty school marched from across the street and entertained the women with orchestral and chorus numbers and an adorable kindergarten group, with their bells, castanets, tambourines, triangles and drums—the tiny "drummeress" was a most captivating young person. There were solos by Mrs. J. E. Crawford, accompanied by Mrs. Anthony Jones, and Mrs. A. A. Pelubet, accompanied by Mrs. Hattie Murray. But the high light of the afternoon was a talk by Miss Sara Soffel, who "looked over" the presidential possibilities and some of the issues which the country is facing and which the new president may have a part in solving. Hoover is undoubtedly the outstanding possibility in the Republican field, Miss Soffel declared. She gave as her personal objection of Al Smith, on the Democratic side, that she believed him to be "Manhattan-minded rather than national-minded and lacking in background, experience and education." "We need, as we have never needed before, a man to cope with international questions," she said.

An unusually large attendance marked the annual reciprocity day held this afternoon by the Woman's Club of Crafton in the Craft Club. Mrs. A. D. Robb headed the line receiving the presidents and representatives from other clubs, an honor guest being Mrs. Carl E. Coslowsky, president of the Congress of Clubs and a former president of the hostess organization. Mrs. D. Edwin Miller, chairman of the Congress department of education, was the speaker, who had as her topic "Education Through the Congress."

Mrs. Elsie Breese Mitchell, chairman of music at the Congress, provided soprano solos and Frank Kennedy was her accompanist. The program was in charge of Mrs. E. V. Carothers and the tea hour of Mrs. G. W. Hill, with Mrs. G. A. Price, Mrs. G. G. Prescott, Mrs. F. E. Proctor, Mrs. John M. Reed and Mrs. Clifford Reese as hostesses.

Keeping mentally alert and preventing diseases are two ways of keeping young, Mrs. N. W. Storer told Epoch Club members in her paper on "Keeping Young," which was given at yesterday's meeting in the home of Mrs. G. B. Griffin, Elmer street. In place of Mrs. Francis D Glover's paper on child welfare, Miss Nellie D. Coyne, from the Soho Settlement, talked on the same subject.

Suspected of being connected with blackhand activities, Tony Alote, 32, and Nunciati Fade, 39, both of Reed street, were arrested yesterday at Clark and Crawford streets, by City Detectives Walter Kaiser and Charles Rosenblatt. They are being held on charges of suspicion. The detectives say they found a revolver, a blackjack and a list of names of persons implicated in blackhand activities in their possession.

What margarine is Best for Children?

More mothers choose GOOD LUCK than any other because of its greater nourishment

The question as to what is the best margarine to give growing children has been settled for you by countless thousands of careful mothers.

More American children are being raised on Jelke GOOD LUCK than on any other margarine made!

Mothers instinctively realize that a margarine made of nutritious meat products must be higher in food value and finer in flavor than those made of cheaper vegetable oils.

If you want your children to be strong and healthy, give them GOOD LUCK at every meal. It is rich in food elements, including vitamines, which promote growth and create strength and energy.

LADY MACBETH "BOBS"

BANDIT CAPTOR REWARDED BY DEMOTION

Detective James L. McInerney, a member of the automobile squad, who last December achieved fame in the single-handed capture of four members of the notorious "Night Rider" gang, that had terrorized the North Side and East Liberty districts for weeks with a series of daring robberies, yesterday was demoted to a wagonman and assigned to the West End station. The demotion of McInerney was included in the transfer of about 50 members of the force, announced yesterday by Supt. Peter P. Walsh.

McInerney, a former lieutenant of police, has been a member of the automobile squad for about six months, coming to the automobile division from the homicide squad. His work in rounding up the "Night Riders" brought compliments from scores of citizens and brother officers and the unusual "reward" handed out yesterday has puzzled the detectives at headquarters. About 40 other police department transfers were announced yesterday.

HOOVER SHUNS WISCONSIN

WASHINGTON, March 2.—(AP.)—Secretary Hoover intends to remain out of the Republican primaries in Wisconsin.

Announcement was made on his behalf today that his name had been entered yesterday at Madison as a presidential candidate "by an unauthorized person" and would be withdrawn.

A statement issued by George Akerson, personal representative of the Commerce Secretary, said:

"Mr. Hoover's name was placed in the Wisconsin primaries by an unauthorized person and without the knowledge of his friends. His friends have no organization in that state and the request has been made that the filing be withdrawn. This will be done today."

WOMAN DIES OF BURNS

Burns on the body suffered when her clothing became ignited from a gas stove in her home resulted in the death of Mrs. Catherine Lorenz, 50, of 507 Nash street, North Side, in St. John's Hospital late last night.

The accident occurred February 12, last.

SECOND ESCAPE IN MINE DEATH BEING PROBED

County Detectives John W. Geisler and David Carlin today are investigating alleged negligence of coal and iron police in not notifying county authorities of the escape of a man accused of shooting his father-in-law at a mine home of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation at Mollenauer February 14. The probe is being made at the behest of District Attorney Samuel H. Gardner. This is the second case of a slayer's escape due to the alleged negligence of coal and iron police in Allegheny county, it is said.

The escape came to light yesterday following the death of Andrew Muldoon, 68, in St. Joseph's Hospital. Muldoon was shot by his son-in-law, Foy Warren, according to the report to county detectives, but Chief George Murren says he was under the impression that coal and iron police had arrested Warren. The case was reported to the county sleuths, but Warren's escape was not, Murren said. Corp. Floyd Shaner reported the shooting, the record shows.

Capt. E. A. Woy, in charge of the coal and iron police for the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Company, asserted last night that the case had been reported to county authorities and his men were not responsible for Warren's escape.

SAYS COMMON SENSE HAS PROLONGED LIFE

The normal span of life has been increased from 45 to 58 years in the last 15 years, the main reason for this being the use of more "common sense," according to Dr Harold Gardiner, local representative of the Life Extension Institute, who last night addressed students and members of the University of Pittsburgh faculty in the Heinz House. The gathering was held under the auspices of the "Cuax," an honorary scientific fraternity for women. The use of common sense in having an annual health examination brings out defects that can be remedied before they become serious, Dr. Gardiner said.

NAB MAN, WIFE AS NARCOTIC "HANDLERS"

Joseph C. Day, 33, also known as "Al" Day, and wife, Peggy Day, 22, were placed in the county jail today to await action of the federal grand jury in Erie next month on charges of forging and passing prescriptions for drugs in and around Erie.

They were brought to Pittsburgh today from Uniontown where, arrested as suspects in robberies, they were identified as "dope handlers."

Reed, Hyatt Lead Attack

By JESS CARVER.

I'VE a sneaking suspicion that all is now well with Robert Thorn of the Grove City Thorns this fine day. Robert's ball club, known to the masses as Grove City College's varsity basketball team, was very handily downed by Doctor Harold Carlson's unbeaten Pitt Panthers here last night, who doubled the score on the Crimson in hanging up their eighteenth consecutive triumph of the season. The score of the ball game was 54-27.

A fine crowd, that must have numbered 2,500, turned out to see the Panthers in their final appearance of the season in the stadium. The boys and girls saw a great ball game, and saw Capt. Sykes Reed, Stanley Wroblesk and Gyp Wasserlich close their Pittsburgh college careers in blazes of glory. And when I say blazes, I mean blazes.

Pitt lost little time in letting the folks know which team was going to win the game. After about eight minutes of play the score was 18-4, and Grove City was NOT ahead. From then on it was just a question of "how much" and not "who will."

The Grove City defense was much on the fritz throughout the ball game, and the Crimson players did not handle the ball at all cleanly. They seemed strangely unable to stop Pitt's bounce pass, and time after time, Reed or Hyatt or Zehfuss dashed behind the Grove guards to grab zipping passes and turn 'em into field goals.

Reed led the Panther attack in the first half with five field goals. Charley Hyatt was close behind with four and Poison Paul Zehfuss sunk one. At half time, the count was 27-11, and still Grove City was behind.

In the second half outplaying the Crimson generally, the Panthers rushed ahead to a 34-16 lead and then Robert's team, or rather, Robert's Bobby Angels stepped into the picture and got himself four field goals to put Grove City in the game—or at least within telephone distance of the Panthers.

The crowd kept pleading for 50 points, so just to make things certain, the Panthers tallied 54 markers and kept the score at least doubled most of the time.

Hyatt was the leading scorer of the evening, with seven field goals and four fouls for a total of 18 points per game. The boys have tallied 870 points so far this season.

Grove City plays Wash-Jeff at Little Washington tonight and Pitt meets West Virginia at Morgantown tomorrow night.

Tonight, the Dukes will ring down the 1927-28 home curtain by meeting Geneva in a tri-state Conference tussle on the Blue court.

Following their sensational and unexpected triumph over Westminster Tuesday, which triumph must be attributed to the brains of Chick Davies, the Dukes have set their hearts on beating Geneva and securing revenge for the defeat handed them at Beaver Falls earlier in the year.

Tonight's game should be a good one.

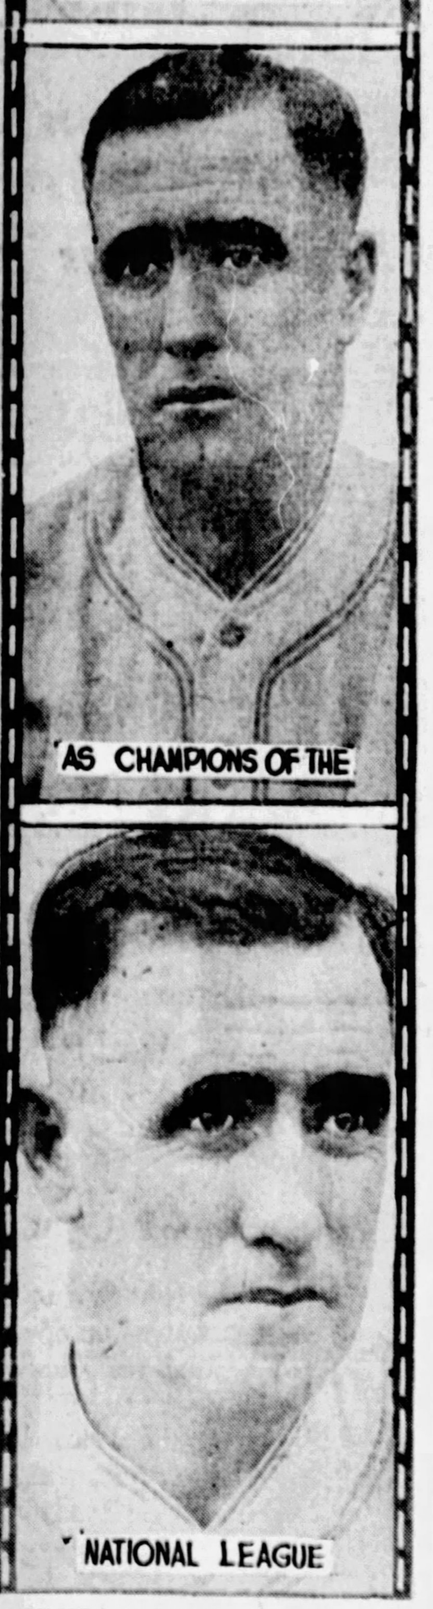
MOVIE INTERVIEW

WE'VE GOT TO FIGHT

TO KEEP OUR POSITION



AS CHAMPIONS OF THE

NATIONAL LEAGUE

AT CAMP

"No Surprise"—Tom

By TOM HEENEY

NEW YORK, Mar. 2.—I wasn't surprised when the officials decided I had beaten Jack Delaney.

To be truthful Delaney isn't one-third the hitter I supposed he was. He is made to order for me. I'd rather fight a couple of Delaneys a week than one Jack Sharkey or a Paulino.

Delaney is a past master at holding. He clinched repeatedly and wouldn't let me fight. I'd knocked him out sure as you're born if he had given me half a chance."

TOM KEEPS PLUGGING TO TAKE VERDICT

By DAMON RUNYON,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The rugged old Rock of Down Under, Tom Heeney, trudged through 15 toilsime rounds to a decision over Jack Delaney at Madison Square Garden last night.

And when I say trudged, I don't mean danced, or skipped. Thomas trudged. He let Jack Delaney do the dancing and skipping, and confined himself to trudging.

Thomas is no feather-footed Faerie of the glen inside those ropes. He walks first on one foot and then on the other and plants each one down firmly and solidly, and his cry is "ever one forward." He throws himself into the fight breeching like a staunch old horse pulling through sand, and he hauled himself home to victory last night largely by a steady grind.

A lot of the 18,000 clients who chucked $174,144 into the capacious coffers of Tex Rickard, roused from the torpor of some dullish rounds to wax most querulous over the decision of the judges, Charles F. Mathison and Harold Barnes, and of the referee, Jack Denning, holding

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

IT IS much too early—even for those on the scene—to draw any definite conclusions from the practice work of the Pirates in Paso Robles. At least another week must elapse before things will begin to shape up in such a fashion as to furnish anything like a real line on the new players.

Ralston Hemsley

But inside dope from the coast is to the effect that, as far as the training has progressed, young Ralston Hemsley is showing the earmarks of a real catcher.

Ty Cobb Returns To A's

By Universal Service.

FORT MYERS, Fla., March 2.—Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletics has announced that he has received word from Ty Cobb at his home in Augusta, Ga., announcing that he had decided to play right field for the Athletics this season.

Cobb has informed Mack that he will report at the spring training camp here on March 8.

The salary or terms have not been announced.

Tris Speaker, former Cleveland pilot and last season a member of the Washington Senators, has also reported to the Macks, and will work out with the team today. The acquisition of Cobb brought to a close a campaign of many weeks' duration on the part of Connie Mack to induce the Georgie Peach to return to the A's for another campaign.

MANAGER BUSH GIVES CATCHER HEMSLEY THE DOUBLE-O.

PROMISING

Catcher Ralston B. Hemsley has shown a lot of stuff in the Pirates' training camp at Paso Robles and attracted much attention from Manager Donie Bush, who is seen looking him over above. Hemsley's home is in Syracuse, O., and he played with Frederick, Md., in the Blue Ridge League last season.

BURLEIGH GRIMES PROTECTS HIS DOME ----

MRS. RILEY, KIRKLAND ADVANCE AT MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., March 2.—Mrs. I. G. Riley of Pittsburgh will participate in the final round in the Miami Women's championship golf tournament over the Country Club course here today. She will play Mrs. Ed. Brophy of Cincinnati in the concluding match in the beaten eight class of the championship sixteen.

Mrs. Riley yesterday eliminated Mrs. Harvey W. Tupper of Philadelphia by 6 up and 5 to play.

G. C. Kirkland of Pittsburgh will participate in the final in the amateur invitation golf tournament over the Municipal course today. He will play Blaine Asher of Spencer, Ia., in the concluding match in the second 16.

Nothing like knowing the tricks of the trade. PRACTICE CONTESTS TO OPEN TUES.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Sun-Telegraph staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, March 2.—Intensive batting and fielding drills are to continue in the camp of the Pirates for some time, Donie Bush indicated today that he will stick by his intention to stress the practice at the expense of camp contests. Donie showed antipathy toward the camp struggles when he hinted he would play games every other day beginning next Tuesday.

In the reign of other pilots the Regular-Yanigan contests have been the brightest features of the preparatory season and they would generally start about four days after the second squad arrived. But Bush is thoroughly convinced that the workouts are more important than the games. Naturally the routine of practice takes zest out of the camp life, but PASO ROBLES, March 2.—Celebrities are given short shrift by Paso Robles. Carrie Jacobs Bond spent a night at the hotel this week, but none of the bridge players booted a trick as a result. Many a time Paderewski has walked the streets of the village without causing any more commotion than the mailman. The youngsters, however, are all pepped up over Pie Traynor, who pays much attention to the kids.

PIRATE ICEMEN TOP TORONTO, 4 TO 2

By CARL W. SHATTO.

HIB MILKS personally attended to the business of keeping the Pirates in third place in the National Hockey League race at Duquesne Garden last night when he contributed three goals to the Pittsburgh ice cause and led the local skaters to a 4-2 victory over the Maple Leafs of Toronto. The Pirates' win was extremely timely, for Detroit also won, at the expense of the New York Americans, thereby keeping even with the Bucs in the race for a play-off berth.

Roy Worters and Harold Darragh supported Hero Hib in a manner that made the center's act go over big, the former making many brilliant saves in the Pittsburgh nets and the veteran wingman accounting for the Buc's other tally.

Darragh was first to score, and his tally was the climax to one of

TONIGHT'S GAME.

Greenwood vs. Currie at 21 Ellis, Diamond street.

A great rally in the final block, in which he outscored Andrew Ponzi of Philadelphia by 225 to 119, failed to save Harry Oswald, local pocket billiard star, from defeat in his 1,000-point exhibition match with the Quaker City cueist, concluded at the Ellis Parlors last night. The final score was 1,000 to 888.

Both players flashed exceptionally fine form in the afternoon block, Ponzi putting together a string of 48 and Oswald having a high run of 36. Ponzi won the block by 121-128. Ponzi left today for the world's title tourney, which opens in Chicago next week, and Oswald will leave tomorrow night to compete in the same event.

Teams from the South Side and Brackenridge will dominate the alleys in the annual tenpin tournament sponsored by the Votei brothers in East Pittsburgh. Although some fine scores were turned in since the tourney opened last Monday, indications are that larger totals will be made before the end of the event, scheduled to close March 16. MINERS' BENEFIT CONTEST CARDED

By JULIUS LEVIN.

CLEVELAND'S two leading teams, the Rosenblums of the American League and the famous Union Trust Company quintet, appear here tomorrow night in the feature attractions on the Saturday basketball schedule.

The Cleveland Rosenblums are scheduled to engage the Duquesne Lafayettes, champions of the Allegheny County League for the last two years, in the main event of the benefit basketball carnival scheduled at Duquesne University, arranged for the destitute miners in this section, while the Cleveland Union Trust passers meet the Mellon National team in a return game at the University of Pittsburgh Stadium pavillion.

Judging by the interest shown in both attractions, the two games should attract large crowds. Several thousand fans are expected to see the Mellon passers engage the Union Trust team. A large delegation of Forest City rooters will accompany the Ohioans here.

In stacking up against Union Trust the Mellon passers face one of their hardest tests of the season. This quintet holds two victories over Pittsburgh opponents, having defeated the Enoch Rauh Club and Mellon National at Cleveland.

The attractions on the Pitt and Duquesne floors will be preceded by high-class preliminary games. The Mellon National Bank girls clash with the National Fire Insurance girls on the Pitt floor, while the Osceola and Verona clubs meet in the preliminary to the Rosenblum-Duquesne battle.

TWO of Pittsburgh's outstanding amateur basketball teams will clash a week from tomorrow night in the Carnegie Tech gymnasium for the annual Alleghenny Mountain Association A. A. U. championship when the crack North Side Community House opposes the Pittsburgh Lancers.

The Pittsburgh Lancers earned the right to meet the Community House passers in the A. M. A. final as a result of scoring a clean-cut victory over the Young Men's Hebrew Association team.

Both the Lancers and Community passers have been displaying brilliant form in local amateur circles this winter and they should present an interesting game a week from tomorrow.

Community House likely will take the floor a slight favorite to win the championship, but the Lancers will not be without supporters.

DRIBBLES

The Lou Gordon Juniors and the Red McMahons of the South Side having split even in the first two games of their series for the junior championship, are making preparations for the third and deciding contest. The managers of the two teams are making an effort to play the contest on a neutral floor. The Gordons won the first contest, while the McMahons evened the score in the second.

The Soho Celtics have won their last nine games, giving them a record for the season to date of 18 victories and five defeats. Teams desiring this attraction for games at home and abroad call Grant 5415-J and ask for Ken.

The Goldensons of the South Side will present their strongest attraction of the season tonight when they clash with the famous McKeesport Cyclers at the South Side Market House. The usual two preliminary games will precede the big attraction.

Leo Mackey, veteran Tristate Officials' Association member, has passed the 100 mark in games handled this season. Mackey reached the century figure this week.

Abe (B. & O.) Levy, former member of the Tristate Officials' Association, spent a day here before departing for Trenton, N. J., where he has been sent by his employers.

Having won the laurels in the first half of the West Penn League race, the Knickerbockers of Lawrenceville have the second half honors all but clinched, thereby making it unnecessary to stage an elimination series at the close of the season. The Knickers proved themselves too strong for the rest of the field in the West Penn race.

REGATTA SCHEDULED

The Old Dominion Boat Club at Alexandria, Va., will sponsor the annual regatta of the Southern Rowing Association July 21.

IN THE TRAINING CAMPS

CUYLER BECOMES COACH

CATALINA ISLAND, Cal., March 2.—(INS.)—Elwood English, the Cubs' high-priced shortstop, has been given into the custody of Kiki Cuyler for some expert advice on sliding. Several other youngsters hot up to Manager McCarthy's idea of par in this department were also turned over to Prof. Cuyler.

WHITE SOX ARMS ACHE

SHREVEPORT, La., March 2.—(INS.)—Today was armies day at the White Sox training camp here. Some of the younger talent, eager to show their wares, gamboled too freely on the first day in camp and are now a mass of aching joints. "They're all alike, these youngsters," said William A. Buckner, veteran Sox trainer.

COBB AND SPEAKER SIGNED

FT. MYERS, Fla., March 2.—(INS.)—Elated over the announcement of Ty Cobb that he will play with the Athletics again this season and over the arrival of Tris Speaker, Connie Mack went about the task in earnest today of getting his players in shape for the summer campaign. Two drills a day will be the daily schedule from now on beginning today.

WRIGHTSTONE SLUGS BALL

WINTER HAVEN, Fla., March 2.—(INS.)—The batting form of Russ Wrightstone is the talk of the Phillies' training camp today following two fast batting drills yesterday marked by the hitting of Wrightstone, Thompson, Sand and Friberg. Manager Shotton switched Wrightstone to the outfield and announced his intention of keeping him in the lineup all season to get his hitting power in the pinches.

LOCKE TO JOIN ROBINS

CLEARWATER, Fla., March 2.—(INS.)—Manager Robinson has invited Roland Locke, famous Nebraska sprinter, to try out for a berth in the Brooklyn outfield. Locke wants to get expert opinion on his ball playing ability if the test will not impair his amateur standing. Locke is a great admirer of Dave Bancroft, Brooklyn shortstop.

GIANTS' MUSCLES SORE

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 2.—(INS.)—Thirty-two members of the New York Giants were a bit stiff today following two long insugural workouts yesterday. Five regulars are still absent, but Pitcher Vic Aldridge is the only holdout. Incensed by Jess Doyle's failure to report, Manager McGraw shipped the young man back to Toronto.

FOUR ROOKIES IMPRESS

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 2.—(INS.)—With Babe Ruth wandering among the bunkers and sand traps, four rookies are monopolizing the spotlight at the camp of the World's Champion Yankees here. They are Outfielder Sam Byrd, a Carolinian; Catcher Herbert Bryant, of Cartersville, Ga.; Outfielder Dusty Cooke, of Alabama, and Bill Dickey, a catcher from Jackson, Miss.

HARRIS TAKES CHARGE

TAMPA, Fla., March 2.—Manager Stanley Harris was to direct the first workout of the full squad of Washington Senators here today. Harris arrived last night, bringing with him Goose Goslin, Joe Judge and the baseball clowns, Al Schacht and Nick Altrock.

BOTTOMLEY IN FORM

AVON PARK, Fla., March 2.—Fears that Jim Bottomley's injured knee might keep him out of the St. Louis Cardinals' lineup this season have been dispelled by the manner in which the big first baseman is getting around.

TWO BROWNS ABSENT

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla., March 2.—Only Heinie Manush and Frank O'Rourke are absent from the St. Louis Browns' camp here. Manush has not been heard from and is regarded as a holdout. Lu Blue, first baseman, reported yesterday and is ready to fill the place left vacant by the sale of George Sisler to the Senators.

PECK MAY PLAY AGAIN

CLEVELAND, March 2.—(AP.)—Suspicions that Roger Peckinpaugh won't manage the Cleveland Indians entirely from the bench this summer have been strengthened by the veteran's workout at his old position of shortstop at the Tribe's practice at New Orleans. Peck, however, hopes the Burns-Fonseca-Sewell-Hodapp combination will keep him off the playing field.

JAKIE MAY JOINS REDS

CINCINNATI, O., March 2.—(AP.)—With the arrival of Jakie May at the training camp at Orlando, Fla., the pitching staff of the Cincinnati Reds is complete with the exception of Pete Donohue and Carl Mays, who are listed as holdouts.

JOHNNIES GET DRILL CAMP

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., March 2.—The batterymen of the Johnstown Club of the Middle Atlantic League, in charge of Manager Claude Roth, will leave on April 15 for Front Royal, Va., where the Johnnies will spend several weeks in training. The remainder of the local squad will leave for the Virginia camp on April 18.

Henry Beck, star catcher with the West Newton club last season, has signed a Johnstown contract. Norbert Dundon, one of the regular receivers last season, has been given his unconditional release.

CHICAGO FIGHTERS WIN AMATEUR TITLES

CHICAGO, March 2.—(AP.)—Chicago fighters won the championships in all divisions of the central A. A. U. boxing tournament which closed last night and in which 274 amateurs from several states participated.

Two of the winners were defending titles earned last year—Solly Schuman, flyweight, and Paul Pantaleo, light heavyweight.

BOUT FOR LEVINSKY

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP.)—Battling Levinsky, the Methuselah of the prize ring, will return to the local istic wars here next Monday evening in a six-round bout with Harold (Little Boy) Blue at the New Broadway Arena in Brooklyn.

SOCCER by NEWS TOMBIRKS

THIS week-end will find three Western Pennsylvania's leading teams in the throes of national amateur cup ties. Two of them, Clan McPherson and Swissvale, will battle Saturday at the Swissvale grounds and the remaining game will see Heidelberg defending its national title at Cleveland against the Magyars.

Just how the Saturday game stacks up remains to be seen. The McPhersons have not played a game for many weeks and the club will probably be out of practice. Anyhow, Union Switch put up a great fight against Harmarville and the Stark aggregation might have another real fight on its hands.

HEIDELBERG will make its annual trip to the Forest City in defense of its title on Sunday. The national champions are without doubt the unluckiest club that ever represented this district in the national competition. When the draw was made at Cleveland, Balsarini's cracks had three chances to come out of the hat first, and which would have eliminated them as a Cleveland candidate. But the Green and Gold is not lucky, so once again Heidelberg must travel to the Forest City to meet the Magyars on the poorest drawing field in the Buckeye State.

THE wonderful progress made by the Cleveland American-Hungarians in the national open challenge cup competition should have stimulated quite a little interest in Ohio among soccerites, but this was not noticeable two weeks ago when the writer went down for the fourth round draw of the amateur competition. Clevelanders claim that the Workers are a poor team and not a drawing card, but with no other counter attraction, why didn't the fans turn out to see the Detroit Swedish-Americans, classed as the best team in Michigan?

THE writer is fully convinced that Magyar field should be banned at the present time by our officials as a playing venue. It is not getting the crowds that Luna Park will draw.

This field is far beyond the West Side and only accessible by means of auto or taxicab, so that the rank and file that support soccer football as it should be supported do not attend the games.

PRIMROSE had a tough 90 minutes at Heidelberg last Sunday when the Panhandle outfit passed from the junior cup. Two gift goals should make the boys feel bad. Outplaying the champions only to lose in that manner is tough luck for any junior outfit to face.

THE last printed schedule standing of the American League announces the fact that with only a few protested games to play, the premier loop of the 1927-28 season will ring down the curtain with Heidelberg as champion. It has been a great race despite the handicaps that most of the managers have had to face. Pittsburgh was the biggest disappointment of the season, inveigling Strachan away from Heidelberg to bolster up its defense. Many fans figured that Carl Ekequist's outfit would go far in the race with Bobby Boyle playing goal. However, while its defense was great, the forward line was one big disappointment. When a team cannot get goals it does not stay very long in any race.

THE outstanding method still in soccer football for a winning team, "is the best defense is a good attack." Many of the wise managers still keep this their ace-in-the-hole. That is the real secret of Heidelberg's success. The Green and Gold attacking line keeps the opposition on the jump all of the time, therefore it has little opportunity to press the Green and Gold defense.

that Jack Delaney should have had a draw.

I suppose there will be as much argument over this one as there was over the battle between Heeney and the terrible Sharkey man of Boston, which was called a draw. Heeney is now supposed to meet the winner of the next heavyweight crush between the terrible Sharkey man and Johnny Risko of Cleveland, but in the meantime Gene Tunney may remain unalarmed at his golfing in Miami.

I thought Delaney gave a good boxing exhibition, and after all that is all the law of New York state is supposed to permit. He was spotting Tom Heeney nearly 20 pounds weight, and although he topped Thomas in height by half a head.

The early rounds of the fight were very fast, after that they petered out into exhibitions of plain and fancy wrestling holds with Delaney accused of showing the best grabs. At no time did either man seem in danger of a knockout.

Heeney took Delaney's supposedly murderous right hand wallops smack-dab on the old biscuit several times and kept right on trudging. Heeney himself is not accounted a hard puncher.

After his opening flourish, Thomas settled down to a steadier and more becoming gait—to a trudge, in short.

Wheeling, and turning, and posturing gracefully, Delaney tried hard to pick him off out of that trudge with his famous right hand, but Thomas was steadfast to his grind. I imagine that at the end of 50 rounds, the Rock of Down Under would still be going along at the same effective trudge.

It was not a brilliant fight. In fact some of our more captious critics thought it was a bad one. But I thought it carried enough prospect of a thrill at any moment to lift it above the affair between Tom Heeney and the terrible Sharkey man.

As matters now stand, unless Jack Dempsey is dressing for the gymnasium, we will probably have Heeney and the terrible Sharkey man back again in the good old summer time, but Mr. Tunney need not miss any putts on that account.

New Castle Plays Butler

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER

FIFTH AVENUE and Allegheny meet again tomorrow afternoon in the second—and possibly final—round of the City Senior League championship in the Pitt Stadium pavilion, following tonight's clash on the same court between Butler and New Castle high schools for the Section 3, W. P. I. A. L. crown. The dispute for the divisional leadership, a playoff of a tie, is hardly to be classed in local interest, however, with the conditions under which the North Siders and Downtowners will engage in tomorrow, beginning at 3 o'clock.

Allegheny, champion in Section 2, which seems to have gained a reputation of being the weaker of the two city league sections, has already tucked under its wing the first spoils of the title elimination series. In a close game last Tuesday, it turned back the Briggs-coached tide from Section 1. If it can turn the same trick tomorrow, then the hash will be cut and dried—no further argument will be necessary. But if it can't, the teams will be forced to play a third and final game next week to decide the issue.

CLOSELY MATCHED

The quints are so closely matched that the outcome hardly can be predicted. Both teams have an exceptionally fine fighting spirit and are well drilled in the rudiments of the game. The position of Fifth avenue tomorrow, as the underdog, should give it even a greater fighting spirit.

In a preliminary contest, beginning at 2 o'clock, Fifth Avenue juniors will lock horns with Westinghouse in a City Junior League championship tilt. That game, also, should be close.

NEW CASTLE-BUTLER PLAY

From New Castle and from Butler, basketball hotbeds, will come an avalanche of fans tonight to witness the battle between the crack high school teams of those towns in the Pitt Stadium, with the title in Section 3 of the W. P. I. A. L. at stake.

The teams each won a game from the other on their respective home floors. Tonight they will battle again in the deciding struggle. New Castle is defending its W. P. I. A. L. championship, won after a hard series last year.

Fifth Avenue, victor in Section 2 of the City Junior League, defeated Oliver, Section 2 leader, 19 to 13, in a championship elimination game on the North Siders' floor last night.

Carrick High's swimming team, undefeated, set down Langley. The score was tied at 25-all at the end of the meet, but Carrick's win in the relay gave it the victory. Oliver juniors defeated Latimer, 32-18 in another meet.

Mandell Favors Chicago for Title Bout

CHICAGO, March 2.—(AP)—The lightweight champion, Sammy Mandell, is sure he wants to defend his crown against Jimmy McLarnin in Chicago instead of New York, but he isn't so positive he can beat the coast puncher.

"I won't say I can beat McLarnin," said Sammy, "but I'm sure McLarnin can't beat me. I saw him knock out Kid Kaplan, and, while he can hit, he will be easy to land on. He's only a challenger, and if he wants this chance at the title, he will have to come to Chicago."

CHILLYSAUCE

Sunny Joe is on his way to the camp of the Cleveland Indians, in company with Lounis Fonseca, another native son. Their train made a five-minute stop at Paso Robles just before midnight and Joe and Socko climbed aboard to wish Eddie bon voyage and a berth with the new Redskins.

JOHN MILJUS was in a reminiscent mood as he began to reenact his experiences in France. Miljus and Remy Kremer are room-mates, and their room held a number of other players who were interested as Miljus gave a realistic version of one harrowing battle. John had parapets arranged with the aid of beds and he worked himself up to a big climax. At one point he charged directly at Kremer, who retreated, shouting:

"The other way, John—I'm French; I'm with the Allies."

"IF I keep feeling like this I'm going to buy me a fielder's glove and give somebody a fight for that left field job," exclaimed Joe Harris last night after taking a bath and a rest on top of two long workouts. Joe was laughing hard as he made the statement, he apparently getting much of a kick over the prospect of running one of the younger players to the bench.

EARL SMITH is the funniest player in camp. Earl has something for every situation, despite the luck on recently wagers. Oil of the Ozarks was "down" on Uzcudun and Delaney. But he'll keep on guessing until he picks a winner.

REMY KREMER was struck on his bad knee with the hot bounder in the afternoon session. It was feared that the blow might be serious as Frenchy hopped to the bench in pain. However he said everything was O. K., although his knee showed a mean looking welt. The same leg took the ace out for five weeks last summer.

276 RUNNERS QUALIFY FOR PYLE'S MARATHON

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—(AP.)—Two hundred seventy-six runners and walkers, among them international figures in marathon events, have qualified for C. C. Pyle's $48,500 cross-country trek to New York City, starting here Sunday, it was announced today.

ROSENBLOOM

Square Garden tomorrow night.

For instance, most of the local boxing followers never heard of Brown until he was matched with Rosenbloom, a favorite here. Yet he has knocked out the veteran Jeff Smith, the rugged Babe McGorgary and others, and handed a tasy trimming to Homer Robertson, a former Pittsburgher, whom he had on the floor a couple of times in a recent bout in Boston. A boxer who can turn in such a record is a good one, and yet Brown is little ballyhooed and little known. He will receive a thorough test at the fists of Rosenbloom and a victory over the latter will cause the fightgoers everywhere to sit up and pay heed to him in the future.

The Tug Phillips-Phil Scello semi-final at Motor Square Monday night should be a hot battle. Scello, since his return to the ring following a long layoff, has dropped most of his boxing for slugging, and, pitted against a boxer in Phillips, should make a great fight.

The Pete Zivic-Lou Moscowitz fight, originally scheduled for last Saturday night at the Olympia A. C. in New York, will be put on tomorrow night. Joey Katkish, local bantam, will meet Al Singer in one of the six-round preliminaries. Ernie Jarvis will oppose Joey Ross in the windup of another New York show tomorrow night.

Jack McVey, Negro middleweight of New York, and Lou Scozza of Buffalo box over the 10-round route in Buffalo tonight.

Eddie Barr, South Side lightweight, will box on an all-star card for Jim Mullen at Chicago, March 16. He also has bouts pending in Erie and at McKeesport.

The North Side A. C. will hold its third amateur show of the season next Thursday night in Masonic hall.

HOCKEY

those solo drives that make a goalie wonder what his five mates are doing while the tally manufacturer gets in his deadly work. Blazing a trail down center ice less than two minutes after the opening face-off, Harold eluded every Torontoan who attempted to exchange personal greetings, split the last line of defense and counted on a well-placed drive that he let go from right at Goalie Roach's feet. Roach had no chance to save and his try at a miracle fizzled.

When it became evident that they were not going to be able to outhockey the Bucs, the Leafs endeavored to slow down the locale with stiff body checking. Art Smith was the battering ram in the pile-driving tactics and for a time the spills were frequent and painful. These bruises all were absorbed by the players until less than two minutes of the close of the stanza when Duncan let the fans share in the woe by piling right through center for a touchdown. Mr. Duncan eluded the Bucs forwards in center ice, held to dead center as he oozed through the local defenders and then evened the count by finding the center of the net. The goal judge failed to flash the light to signal Duncan's goal and a debate, a conference and a decision in favor of Toronto followed. Goalie Worters, interviewed after the game, said that Duncan's shot had found the net, but that he and the goal judge were under the impression that Referee Ritchie had sounded his whistle before the shot was started.

Miljus and Burke both missed close shots at the start of the second period before Hib started his victory drive. After about five minutes of play, Darragh passed out from the boards and Miljus standing alone in front of the Toronto cage had no trouble in passing Roach.

Five minutes later Miljus turned in the best piece of offensive work that has been seen at the Garden this season. While two Leafs were lazily nursing the puck along the boards, Hib swooped up and wrested the disc from them and darted for the Toronto citadel. Brilliant stick handling mystified the Toronto defenders, and again Hib counted on a drive that had Roach completely baffled.

A combination play, engineered by Rodden and Cox, with the latter on the scoring end, cut the Bucs lead down to one goal just before the period ended.

Miljs's third and last goal was a home run drive started from the center of the rink just 45 seconds after the final period got under way. Goalie Roach had plenty of time to see the long swat coming, but he made a feeble effort to save, letting the rubber bounce off his pads into the net.

Tex White suffered an injury to his back in a collision with A. Smith in the third period, but he was able to resume play after a few minutes rest.

Last night's win served to tune up the Pirates for their clash with the Detroit Cougars here tomorrow, regarded as the most crucial of the season. Today they are running almost neck and neck in the race for a play-off berth, and defeat may mean elimination from a money position and the big series.

LEBANON VALLEY AND ALBRIGHT FREAK

LEBANON, Pa., March 2.—(AP.)—E. E. (Hooks) Mylin, coach of athletics at Lebanon Valley College, informed local newspapers today that his action in calling off athletic contests with Albright College stand not only for the basketball game which was scheduled to be played here tonight, but all games in the future.

Lebanon County's colleges, five years ago, renewed athletic relationship after a lapse of over 12 years of unfriendly feeling.

Mylin protested the eligibility of Albright players, whom the Myerstown faculty approved to participate in athletic events.

TOM HEENEY and JACK DELANEY

Heeney won the decision over Delaney in their 15-round bout in Madison Square Garden, New York, last night in Tex Rickard's heavyweight elimination tournament and will meet the winner of a bout between Jack Sharkey and Johnny Risko for the right to box Gene Tunney for the championship. Heeney and Sharkey recently boxed a 12-round draw.

SPORT COMMENT by JAMES J. LONG

showed plenty of promise in his workouts with the Pirates last fall, and official camp reports say that he looks even better this spring.

In fact, some of the older members of the club go so far as to say that Hemsley has the actions of Ray Schalk and Muddy Ruel, and predict that he will be a real catcher before the end of the 1928 season, whether he is kept by the Pirates or placed somewhere for development.

Right now the signs are that both Hemsley and Bill Haeffner will be kept beyond the opening of the season at least.

MANAGER DONIE BUSH himself, in a letter to Pirate headquarters here, includes some words of praise for Hemsley and Haeffner and for a number of the other new Bucs. In fact, Donie is greatly pleased at the manner in which the battery squad as a whole has been performing.

Donie Bush.

"I have not been disappointed in the showing of the new pitchers, nor with that of the old ones either," Bush wrote. Kremer, Hill and Miljus are coming along nicely, and so is Grimes. Fussel, one of the new left-handers, has a free and easy motion that makes him look like a real pitcher, and Brame also is displaying considerable.

"In fact, practically the entire squad of pitchers and catchers has shaped up so far in a manner that is most encouraging. I could not ask for a more satisfactory all-around showing."

ANOTHER boost for the Pittsburgh club and a prediction of Pirate pennant success come from Andy High, one of the infielders of the Boston National League club.

"I cast my vote for the Pirates in the spring pennant guessing," said High. "I favor the Buccaneers' chances because I believe they were strengthened by the deal with the Cubs in getting Sparky Adams and Pete Scott in exchange for Kiki Cuyler.

"Pittsburgh won without Cuyler and with a hole at second base last year," continued Andy, "so it follows that they are bound to be stronger this year, as Adams is going to give them just what they needed at the keystone.

"Adams is even a more valuable player than he looks to be from the outside—hustling, fighting, hard to pitch to, and at his best in the pinches."

HIGH also figures that in the trade with Pittsburgh, the Cubs did not get a player who was needed to improve the club. He says Earl Webb and Clifton Heathcote were satisfactory right fielders for the Bruins last season, but both have to stay on the bench now that Cuyler has been signed.

Andy High.

And besides, he points out, it remains to be seen whether Maguire or any other player can restore what the club has lost by proving the equal of Adams at second base.

Andy has eliminated the Giants as dangerous contenders because they parted with Rogers Hornsby.

"You don't find batters every day in the week who hit .380 and drive in 125 runs for you during the course of a season," said the Hub infielder.

BEN LUBIC, Pitt's brilliant basketball star in 1914-15-16-17—the rule barring freshmen from varsity teams was not in force at that time—and later floor coach at Carnegie Tech, is elated over the sensational showing made by the quintet representing his alma mater this season.

"The Pitt team is the greatest I have ever seen and I do not believe that it has an equal anywhere in the college ranks," said Ben. "The record that it has made is all the more remarkable when it is considered that the regular lineup is made up of small boys, with the single exception of Capt. Reed.

"PITT may have a harder fight than usual in the final game with Penn State at State College on March 10, but I am confident they will win that, as well as the other remaining game with West Virginia and W. & J., and finish the season unbeaten.

Lubic in his playing days was one of the best college basketeers in the country. He was particularly brilliant as a foul shooter in the days when one player did all the shooting of that kind. It was ordinary for him to shoot 12 to 15 goals from fouls in succession, and in one game he put 22 out of 26 through the hoops.

AL MELLO SUSPENDED

BOSTON, March 2.—(INS.)—Al Mello, Lowell welterweight, although exonerated of deliberately fouling Ace Hopkins, the Nebraska Wildcat, in their bout here recently, was under three months' suspension today by the Massachusetts Boxing Commission. Commissioner Eugene Buckley stated that the suspension was imposed because both men had been warned while in the ring that in the event of a foul the offending boxer would be suspended for six months. Commissioner Buckley changed the ruling and suspended Mello for three months and placed him on probation for three more.

PIRATES

Donie won a flag last season by pursuing his own ideas. You cannot find a better argument than that.

Meantime, the first-string pitchers, who have been working diligently for 10 days, are beginning to slow down a bit to hold to their form. Outside of Kremer and Meadows, the favored hurlers are ready to go a considerable distance. More than one veteran could shoot the ball across for seven innings without straining any ligaments.

Nothing exciting is expected, therefore, before next Tuesday, unless Bush changes his mind about the camp scraps. Four or five days hence the peppery Hooligans will spring at their elders and the fur is sure to fly. With Paprika Dick Bartell, Sunny Joe Cronin and Coburn Jones, the newest pepper box in camp, all on the same infield, the Yans will be a screaming success, even if they are outscored by their superiors.

And the Hooligans are very keen to start the fun. Besides the lively boys mentioned, the second team will sport such promising lads as Ralston Hemsley, Fred Brickell, Travis Wanet, Parker Brewer, Claude Linton, George Gottlieber, Charlie Walsh, Regis Lebeny, Glen Spencer and others.

So many of the rookie pitchers are impressive, Bush will face the problem of placing the surplus boys under option. The pitchers referred to above are not ripe for the big show, but the majority of them will be fastened to stout Pittsburgh cords.

The sharpshooting staff consists of 17 athletes, including the tried and true veterans. Boys like Edwin Brame, James Lindsey, Walter Tauscher, George Peery and Ike Mahaffey cannot be listed as rookies. Not all of them can be retained, but the staff of vacancies will be filled by some of these lads of extensive minor league experience. Erwin Brame continues to hold a place near the inside rail, but there are several others who may show as well as Brame when the competitive season begins.

tions of the tristate district have been received.

Pittsburgh Council continues to set the pace in the Knights of Columbus Chapter Bowling League with 58 victories and 16 defeats. Three 200 scores were registered this week. Yeager of Duquesne smashed the wood for 246, Hirsig of Sharpsburg made 217, while Schott of Braddock was credited with a score of 202.

Plaza No. 2's bowling team is certainly going along at a fast pace, only recently it defeated the Railway Mail Service in a thrilling match at the Plaza alleys. The score was: Plaza, 1,991; Railway, 1,908. The team is eager to arrange games with other teams. Call Al at Montrose 1113.

WINTRINGER LOSES

PINEHURST, N. C., March 2.—When Robert L. Wintringer of Steubenville, O., lost a 19-hole match to Robert E. Harlow in the spring tournament here yesterday, the last vestige of Pittsburgh district interest was removed from the first division.

M'LARNIN GETS SOLONS' O. K.

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The New York State Athletic Commission has formally recognized Jimmy McLarnin, the rarin', tearin' little Irish fighter from the Pacific Coast as the logical challenger for Sammy Mandell's lightweight boxing title.

The recognition process was merely an official gesture. Jimmy filed a non-contestable challenge in Madison Square Garden when he pasted Sidney Terris, the fast East Side fighter to sleep in the first round of their setto. Terris had been recognized by the commission as Mandell's logical opponent.

Pop Foster who manages the new little Irish sensation has filed the challenge for McLarnin with the commission. Foster posted a $5,000 check with the commission as forfeit money to bind the challenge.

HUNTER, HENNESSEY NEAR FINAL MATCHES

MIAMI BEACH, Fla., March 2.—(AP.)—Francis T. Hunter, ranking number two American tennis player, working at top form, had a walkaway in his quarter final match in the South Florida tennis tournament here yesterday, defeating Carroll Turner of Miami, in love sets.

John Hennessey, number five of Indianapolis, however, had to fight uphill to bare victory over Searle Barnett, veteran Chicago champion.

MRS. HORN AND MISS HOLLINS GOLF FINALISTS

DEL MONTE, Cal., March 2.—(AP.)—Mrs. Mariam Burns Horn of Kansas City, national women's gold champion, and Miss Marion Hollins of New York, former titleholder, were matched today in the final of the Pebble Beach championship—the women's golf classic of the Pacific coast.

Management All Important; South's Leading Executive.

—By B. C. FORBES—

IN THE SOUTH, March 2.

I HAVE just had a talk with the head of the largest manufacturing enterprise in the entire South. His company last year paid $5,000,000 in cash dividends and a stock dividend of $9,930,000. Its assets exceed $40,000,000. Under this man's management, the net profits have jumped from $4,529,000 in 1923 to $9,163,000 last year.

The company has invaded 35 foreign countries and its product enters every hamlet in the United States.

"MANAGEMENT has become the most important factor in business and industry today," said this extraordinarily successful upbuilder. "Capital can be procured nowadays in unlimited quantities. But capital is not the dominant or determining factor in the success of a business. It is management. And, fortunately, no one group can control the nation's supply of brains. The field for superior management is wide open in this country."

THE company is the Coca-Cola Company; the speaker Robert W. Woodruff, its president.

Although only 38, I would rate this young Georgian as capable of filling the highest of industrial positions in America. Attempting to interview him was a ticklish task. He is a walking interrogation mark. Each time I asked him something, he plied me with questions—on the plea that as I had been traveling all over the country, I must know a lot more than he did!

If the South can develop a number of men of equal ability during the next few years, its rate of progress will be tremendously quickened. Born in Columbus, Ga., Bob Woodruff, after attending the Georgia Military Academy and Emory University, took up mechanics, then salesmanship, and next became purchasing agent. Fifteen years ago he joined the White Motor Company of Cleveland, made such a mark that he was advanced to the vice presidency, and in the recent reorganization of the company his counsel was again sought. He is now an influential factor in his old organization.

He was selected as president of Coca-Cola in 1923.

FEW concerns have equaled Coca-Cola's showing since Woodruff took the helm. Each year has shown growth. The financial results achieved have been such as to make an impression even upon Wall street. Not only have dividend disbursements been increased, but the entire $10,000,000 of preferred stock has been paid off. Plant values have been written down, cash increased from $2,267,000 at the end of 1923 to $9,766,000 now. Current assets increased from $5,550,000 to $13,585,000; current liabilities reduced to only $547,000.

More fortunes have been made by southern folks who have owned Coca-Cola shares than have been made, so far as known, in any other southern enterprise.

THIS Atlanta company is the largest consumer of sugar in the world. Last year it used 130,000,000 pounds.

The ingredients for the company's product are made exclusively at the mammoth Atlanta plant. Even the 35 foreign countries are supplied from headquarters, not in the form of syrup, as at home, but in the form of concentrates, thus greatly reducing shipping costs.

"Our foreign business is not yet of large volume," said Mr. Woodruff, "but it promises to become very large. We never establish a bottling plant anywhere, either at home or abroad, until we have made as thorough an investigation as we know how to make of all the factors bearing upon the chances of success. Responsible officers go and examine every proposed location. We are great believers in collecting every pertinent fact and figure. We try to be just as careful about each step we make as we are about making our product."

"HOW do you feel about the outlook?" I asked. This level-headed executive's reply was unusual; it will interest other executives.

"So far as our own company is concerned, I constantly expect trouble. At the opening of each year I say to myself that something is pretty sure to happen to prevent us from equaling the progress made in the previous year."

He added, with a smile: "Maybe it's because we are constantly on the lookout for trouble that we have been able so far to avoid it."

COCA-COLA'S record supports Mr. Woodruff's contention that management is all-important. Here is a concern, born in Atlanta, that has become by far the largest enterprise of its kind in the world. Location has had little or nothing to do with it. The product itself has naturally been a factor; but only managerial brains could have caused it to develop into a $40,000,000 business. Mr. Woodruff disclaims any special credit for himself, but his next-in-command, Harrison Jones, and other executives enthusiastically tell you that it is their president that the stockholders have mainly to thank for the gratifying ...s of the business.

STOCK MARKET CONTINUES TO DRIFT

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP.)—The stock market continued today to drift in rather aimless fashion, with no indication of a definite trend. Pools again marked up a few favorites 2 to 5 points at the same time that bear traders were digging out new weak spots. Commission houses continued to advise caution in the making of new commitments, which was reflected in the relatively small volume of trading.

The action of the market this week appears to indicate that opposing speculative forces had reached a stalemate, with the future trend probably dependent upon some outside force. Weekly mercantile reviews reported further irregularity in business, but with progress being made in most lines, although the volume continues slightly below the corresponding level last year.

Call money again renewed at 4½ per cent with plenty of funds available at that figure. Large industrial corporations who have no need of surplus cash, are reported to be heavy lenders in the call market, thereby competing with banks and other large financial institutions.

General Motors pointed upward today on predictions of record-breaking first quarter earnings, but United States Steel common dipped to a new low level for the year, presumably on selling inspired by the disappointing pick-up in spring business. Collins & Aikman was the new target today for bear traders, who have succeeded in uncovering a new weak spot each day this week. R. H. Macy, which jumped 23 points soon after the opening, lost 15 points of the gain by early afternoon.

Declines of 3 points or more in International Business Machines, Mullins Body, Transue & Williams, Montgomery Ward, American Radiator and American Republics were offset by similar gains in Brooklyn Edison, American Bosch Magneto, Kelly-Springfield 8 per cent preferred and Universal Leaf Tobacco.

NEW CASTLE MAN FINDS 12 SNAKES; SPRING NEAR

NEW CASTLE, Pa., March 2.—Spring weather is not far away, according to Charles Black, of near East Brook, who discovered 12 snakes in a lane on his farm where he was grading. The snakes were found under stones, having apparently come out from winter quarters and been caught by the recent cold spell.

SHARP GAINS REGISTERED BY MACHINE ISSUES

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, March 2. (AP.)—Heavy new offerings continued to create hesitancy in the bond market today. The day's new issues, totaling $124,000,000, set a new record for the year, and followed a series of large offerings earlier in the week. The day's aggregate was largely accounted for by the $100,000,000 "Prisco" 4½s, which were reported promptly oversubscribed.

Following the offering, listed bonds of the "Frisco" system inclined to heaviness on realizing. Rock Island bonds also sagged a trifle, but Atchison general 4s had a moderate gain. Continental Bag & Paper 6½s advanced a point to 91, the highest price of the year.

There was some buying of Canadian bonds, but the foreign group as a whole was rather irregular. Latin-American issues were subject to moderate liquidation.

Early dealings in the federal government group were light.

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP.—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, 000 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP.)—Curb market prices continued upward today, but generally movements were limited. Several old favorites that gained early in the day sagged toward noon.

More than a dozen industrials touched new highs, among them Atlas Portland Cement, British-American Tobacco, Melville Shoe and both issues of Nichol and Shepard. Banettaly went right on up on the strength of Bank of America shares on the "big board," rising more than 8 points to a new high at 193. Drug, Inc., stock of the firm resulting from merger of Standard Products and United Drug was heavily bought.

Stocks which showed signs of weakness were hammered down. American Cigar dropped nearly 8 points to a new low at 132. Celanese common lost nearly 6 points and the other Celanese issues dropped 5 to 9 points. A. C. Spalding and Sparks Withington also sagged.

The public utilities were rather neglected, although Blackstone Valley Gas and Electric and Buffalo, Niagara and Eastern reached new high ground.

Oils were stronger. Transcontinental made the largest gain, 3½ points. Houston Gulf became active, advancing about 2 points. Ohio and Vacuum sold off more than a point each.

Bonds came in for more attention today, several industrials advancing. Russian 6½s were stronger, possibly on account of attention paid to gold transfers.

NEW YORK, March 2.—(AP.)—Following is the list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (000 omitted in sales column in bond list):

HIT WITH POKER, WOMAN SUES

Damage suits filed in Common Pleas Court yesterday had a wide variety of causes, ranging from a dog bite to a stove poker.

Eleanor Catanzaro, 17, of 650 Suffolk street, and Phillip Catanzaro, her husband, are asking $15,000 joint damages from Henry E. Haas, 48, a grocer, at 2318 East street. They charge that last January 8, when Mrs. Catanzaro went to the store, Haas struck her on the head with an iron poker, inflicting serious injuries. Haas is now under indictment in Criminal Court, on a charge of aggravated assault and battery.

Elizabeth Ballo and John Ballo, her husband, Carnegie, are suing Thomas I. Cottom, 552 Washington avenue, Carnegie, for $5,000 joint damages. They say Mrs. Ballo was bitten by Cottom's dog June 9, 1927. Mrs. Ballo declared she had gone to the rear of Cottom's home at his invitation.

For injuries received when a metal bucket fell from a shelf and struck her on the head last February 14, in the McCrory store, Eighth avenue, Homestead, Mrs. Hannah Foland and Esmond Foland, her husband, are asking $5,000.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of our dear husband and father, Blair D. Fink, who departed this life one year ago today, March 2, 1927.

Tonight the stars are gleaming
Upon a lonely grave,
There sleepeth without dreaming
One we could not save.
Some may think we are not lonely,
Little do they know the heartaches
That we suffer all the while,
When at times they see us smile.
On the hillside sweetly sleeping,
Far away from care and pain,
May you rest in Jesus' keeping
'Till in Heaven we meet again.

Sadly missed by his wife, Mrs. Carrie L. Hood Fink, and family.

In loving memory of our father Samuel Wilson, who died two years ago today, March 2, 1926. Sadly missed by wife and children.

'THE CONGRESSMAN'S SON'—A Fearless Expose

The author (left) at the age of 17. Note the resemblance to Congressman Frisby, whom he accuses of being his father.

"Meet the wife!"

My mother half whispered, half screamed her exclamation. She was standing directly back of the unsuspecting Frisby, who, with a flourish, was about to register at the Hotel Metropole.

I was in an advantageous position, clasped to mother's breast.

Frisby half turned. He caught a glimpse of my mother, coughed and turned again to the clerk.

He was plainly agitated, although he started whistling one of his own compositions, "Hello, Central, Give Me Heaven."

My mother went a step nearer. Placing her index finger to her pursed lips and raising her eyebrows, she motioned to everyone to be quiet.

"Don't you know me, Horace?" she whispered in Congressman Frisby's ear. He twitched, but pretended not to hear. My mother, reaching deftly into her stocking, pulled forth a roll of newspaper clippings. These she tucked into Frisby's free hand, which was clinching and unclinching. When he felt the roll he grasped it tightly, never suspecting that he was grasping the undeniable proof of his own perfidy.

The moment Congressman Frisby awakened to his true status he was in a rage. First he—

ON "STIMULATING WOMEN"

All women, of course, are STIMULATING, though
Not necessarily MENTALLY.
Some women are not Only stimulating, they are
Downright INTOXICATING.
They go straight to a man's
HEAD, and make him
FORGET himself,
Which may not much matter,
But they also make him
Forget his FAMILY—
Which DOES MATTER.
There are, generally speaking,
THREE kinds of women:
Some, like rare WINE, have to Be DELICATELY tasted
To be appreciated. They are More a FLAVOR than an actual
Drink, and are a complement
And INSPIRATION to life.
Others, nice women, but less
Subtle, are treated like
Ordinary ALE, and swallowed
Whole, as it were.
Of course, NO woman wants to
Be considered a glass of ICE water. Yet there are Good women who throw COLD
Water on everything.
And these often DRIVE a man
To drink—ELSEWHERE.

BUGS BAER Says

DIRECTORS of American bee industries have just completed their annual stingaree in Chicago. Bee salesmen are always welcome around this shack, provided that they check their samples at the door.

The bee barons claim that the bee is a much misunderstood animal. Which seems impossible in an insect which makes its point so clear.

The convention indorsed a resolution recommending the bee for its medicinal contents. They claim that its sting will cure rheumatism, lumbago and its by-products.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

Tests were made with rheumaticky old commuters. Bees were backed up to them and the power turned on.

The effect was instantaneous. The sufferers tossed away their crutches, leaped into the air and started out on a personal survey of the rural free delivery routes.

This is a fair test for the bee. But there is no record of any patient ever stinging the doctor.

And there is no evidence that it cures rheumatism. What it does cure is a desire for honey.

We have been rapped by hornets and stabbed by yellow-jackets. Their serum is positive anti-toxin for laziness. One bite imbues you with the ambition to see as much of the world as you can in the shortest possible time.

A hossfly perched on the rumble seat of a Kentucky mule can make that plow gazelle imagine it is a full brother of Man-o'-War. And while there may be little curative properties in the business end of a wasp, the lack of medication is more than balanced by the preponderance of ambition therein.

The allied cooties who fought under the high command Gen. Foch also did their bit. Once they got into action doughboy was ever censured for sleeping on duty.

It looks as if the drug stores will carry a full line of carbon fleas, sterilized potato bugs and tincture of picnic ants.

If the druggist hasn't got the insects you want, you can always get them from the doctor.

A bee sting is a minor operation. But before they start probing with the wrong end of a wasp we want plenty of ether.

Metropolitan Plan Shows Our Population 1,500,000

The actual population of Pittsburgh is 1,500,000, according to Joseph T. Miller, chairman of the Pennsylvania Metropolitan commission. At a meeting of citizens interested in civic advancement in the Chamber of Commerce Mr. Miller advocated a plan to include the 123 municipal units of Allegheny county in a metropolitan district without taking local affairs from control of townships and boroughs.

It also was urged that an amendment to the state constitution which would permit putting the metropolitan plan into effect, which will come to a vote in the fall, be supported.

We at home know that Pittsburgh is one of the leading cities of the nation, although census figures, which do not include our populous residential suburbs, containing the homes of many thousands of persons who really are Pittsburgh residents, put us down in the list of cities below where we belong. We at home know our rightful position, but we suffer through comparisons made by persons who are not aware of local conditions.

The metropolitan district plan would do away with that injustice, but there are even greater and more important reasons for adopting it. Besides being a constructive grasp on the future it is designed to permit extensive benefits in the way of group improvements to local communities.

Meantime, Pittsburgh continues to acquire population and territory through annexation, the latest steps in that line being movements in Hays borough and Mifflin township, which would add to Pittsburgh about 25,000 souls. In time most of the closely surrounding boroughs will follow the example of Carrick and Knoxville, first to break away from the South Hills group of separate municipalities.

Small Tax on Spending Would Give Needed Relief

It now seems likely that we shall have no tax reduction by Congress this year.

There is to be an unexpected drop in tax revenues due to a fall-off in business in the last part of 1927.

There is to be an increase over the estimated expenditures due to Mississippi flood prevention appropriations, Boulder Dam, naval construction, farm relief and other necessary measures.

The greatest sufferer from the failure of tax reduction will be business corporations. Those that are successful must go on handing 13½ per cent of their earnings to the Federal government—1300 million dollars a year.

It is a grievous levy on the results of successful enterprise, which employs labor and keeps the machinery of business operating.

The money thus taken from them for taxation is kept from use on enlarging factories, extending railroads, opening new mines, employing more labor, producing additional goods, creating greater prosperity.

Heavy taxation of corporations is an easy way to get money. But it has its disadvantages, for it means taking money from those who have proved they can employ it profitably and usefully.

When a corporation shows earnings, it is because it has been successful in competing for the public's favor—successful in giving the public lower prices or better goods than its rivals.

Fortunately, there is a way out, if Congress will take it. It is possible to cut the corporation tax to 7 per cent, if Congress will introduce a sales tax, a tax on spending.

We can raise 600 million dollars a year by a small 1½ per cent wholesale tax on all commodities EXCEPT a limited number of necessities of life, such as fuel and foodstuffs.

On a $150 ball gown the tax would be $2.75; on a pair of shoes wholesaling for $4 the tax would be 6 cents. On a $6 hat the wholesale tax would be 9 cents. In many cases it would be absorbed by middlemen and never reach the consumer.

Would the sales tax be unpopular? It is not unpopular in Canada, where a 5 per cent rate is levied. Many Canadians do not know that the tax exists.

Our revenue system lacks a tax on spending. It will be a better system if we raise 600 million dollars by sales tax and 700 million by corporation income tax, instead of taking the whole 1300 millions from successful corporations.

Moreover, by cutting the corporation income tax from 13½ to 7 per cent we shall give a needed stimulus to business and to national prosperity.

Insiders' Graft
Is There Much of It?

Mr. Rockefeller and other oil stock owners probably ask themselves how often the so-called "Continental Oil deal" is repeated.

That deal, it seems, arranged for Continental to buy millions of barrels at $1.50. Other companies, including Standard Oil of Indiana, bought from Continental at $1.75 oil they could have bought for $1.50. A profit of $3,000,000 was made, to be used paying a United States Cabinet officer his price for delivering naval oil reserves to private individuals.

Owners of oil stocks will ask themselves, "If officers of big companies can make deals like that, using their influence and their company's money to supply bribes for public officials, how often do they make such deals for their own account without letting stockholders know?

The bought and paid for Cabinet officer must also be asking some questions. To him it must seem, to raise $3,000,000 to buy him and then only give him $230,000, a very big "holdout."

Garrett P. Serviss Says:

The Story of the Twins

THE keystone of the arch of the zodiac in March evenings is the constellation Gemini, the Twins. There for many ages the imagination has seen Castor and Pollux sitting with their feet dipped in the jewelled stream of the Milky Way, just before it flows above the head of Orion to submerge the golden tips of the horns of Taurus, the heavenly Bull.

In this constellation are found many of the gems of the telescope. The northernmost of the bright twin stars is Castor, now inferior in brilliance to its brother luminary, Pollux, but famous as a double which appears very beautiful in a small telescope, the two component stars being only five seconds of arc apart, so that they resemble a pair of diamonds jostling together in an earring. It was one of Sir William Herschel's most noted discoveries that these stars are linked by gravitation so that they are compelled to revolve around their common center. Their period of revolution is about 350 years. But each one of the pair is itself a double sun, and in these "spectroscopic binaries" the speed of revolution is astounding, the suns composing one of them hurling each other around their center of gravity in about nine days, and those in the other in less than three days. How strange a fate that four great suns have to play whirling dervishes!

The stars of Castor and Pollux mark each the head of one of the immortal twin brethren, sons of Jupiter and Leda, and brothers of Helen of Troy, who, ancient legends affirmed, were translated to the sky after being slain in terrestial warfare after the Argonautic Expedition. But all through Roman history you find the belief prevailing that occasionally the "Great Twin Brethren" reappeared upon earth to turn the tide of battle at some great crisis, as Macaulay describes in his "Lays of Ancient Rome." They were also regarded as the friends of mariners, who prayed to them for aid in storms at sea, and looked with awe upon their symbols, the "St. Elmo's Lights," that occasionally glow at the mastheads of ships in electric weather. Their double quality as allies in battle and saviors in tempests is indicated in one of Macaulay's stanzas:

"Back comes the chief in triumph
Who in the hour of fight
Hath seen the great Twin Brethren
In harness on his right.
And safe comes the ship to haven
Through billows and through gales,
If once the great Twin Brethren
Sit shining on her sails."

In that allurin. story of the adventures of St. Paul, which is usually printed under the title of "The Acts"—and in which, by the way, Emil Ludwig might find a capital subject for another popular biography—it is recorded that when Paul, after his disastrous shipwreck and his winter in an isle of refuge, at length set sail again for Rome, to carry out his bold appeal to Caesar, he embarked in "a ship of Alexandria, which had wintered in the isle and whose sign was "The Twin Brethren."

There you see the old legend in all its strength swaying the minds of men in the midst of their most important affairs, very much as when Hannibal was ravaging Italy, the Senate of Rome would not send forth an army to meet him until the State had been purified, under the direction of the haruspices, from the evil consequences of such prodigies as crows having built a nest in the temple of Juno Sospita, a green palm tree having burnt itself up in Apulia, and a "blood rain" having fallen in the cattle market!

But it is well that the constellations which recall and commemorate these old stories and superstitions have not been ejected from the astronomers' maps, not merely because they are chartographically important, but because they maintain the atmosphere of the humanities around the sublimest objects that are presented to man for his contemplation.

Once Overs
By J. J. MUNDY

What Is Your Charm?

OFTEN when you meet married couples you wonder what the man or the woman saw in his or her partner which was attractive.

While you are thinking along this line, these same people may be having the same thoughts about you and the person you have selected as a mate.

You may be passably good looking, intelligent and have a good income.

But you may have some pretty disagreeable traits, not easy to live with day in and day out, because few people are free from them.

So why consider yourself superior to the majority?

What have you done that is exceptional?

What have you, of charm, that can make up for your unpleasant ways?

If you look about you can find many persons with fewer opportunities than you have had, yet they are your superiors.

Why stake so much on your judgment of those whom you meet?

From what basis do you figure that because you do not see attractive features about persons they don't exist?

Fairness, thoughtfulness, kindness, sympathy, may exist most extensively in the person who is least attractive physically.

The Rhyming Optimist
By ALINE MICHAELS

No Great, No Small

THERE is no great or small in life,
Whatever men may say;
No task that fortune dowers
With all surpassing powers,
No barren deed or day.

For strangely, strongly they are linked,
The things we count as small
And those of greater seeming;
Our doing and our dreaming
Merge surely, one and all.

In no hour more than other hours
Our weal or woe abides,
For like swift ripples flowing,
The moments in their going
Must know time's changeful tides.

The deed we held of little worth,
The word that had no weight . . .
Ah, who can rightly measure
The tawdry things, the treasure?
Life holds no small, no great.

Something to Think About
By BRUNO LESSING

Prohibition

READ this, brother, and weep:

"We, the Westchester Council of Churches and the undersigned clergy of Westchester county, New York, on the eighth anniversary of the Eighteenth Amendment to the Federal Constitution, desire to submit the following declaration for the consideration of the thoughtful citizens of our county as a guide to their own thinking and conduct relative to the important question of prohibition.

"First—That it is the duty of the representatives of the church, in view of the many confusing opinions now being expressed, to make known their convictions on this public matter, which is fundamentally a moral question."

There is also a second, a third, a fourth and a fifth to this declaration, but there is a limit to the patience of sanity. When a sane mind is confronted with the declaration that an amendment to the Constitution of the United States is, "fundamentally a moral question," it quits, in despair.

This writer has urged, again and again, that the church keep its hands off the affairs of the state. After many bloody battles and much unhappiness, under many forms of government, it has been demonstrated that the separation of church and state is best for the welfare of humanity.

In this declaration of the Westchester clergymen, you find a new—and somewhat pathetic—reason why this decision is wise.

These clergymen DO NOT UNDERSTAND THE PURPOSE OF THE CONSTITUTION UNDER WHOSE PROVISIONS THEY LIVE.

The Constitution of the United States is NOT a code of morality. It is a plan of government, adopted by the original States, after bitter discussion, considerable compromise, much give and take and the final triumph of the best that human minds could contribute to the welfare and safety of the majority.

It represents the wisdom of its day. It also represents the lack of wisdom of its day. And every amendment to this Constitution represents both the wisdom and the folly of its day. The element of morality has no more to do with the Constitution than the length of women's skirts or the "best sellers."

Morality is a flexible term. It deals with conceptions of right and wrong, with matters of faith and belief, with various—and sometimes conflicting—standards of conduct. Whether or not one would be justified in saying that drunkenness is, "fundamentally," a moral question, is debatable. That it is degrading and repulsive, no one will deny.

But Prohibition is an inflexible term. And when, like a police regulation concerning ash-cans or the "parking" of motor cars, it is tacked on to the Constitution of the United States, every sensible person realizes that it merely degrades that document without adding one iota to the wisdom of its founders.

When this fanatical intrusion is termed "fundamentally moral," it reveals such a misconception of the entire purpose of the Constitution, that one feels sorry for Jefferson and Franklin and Washington and Hamilton, for all the trouble they took.

THOUGHTS OF THE GREAT—

The wisdom of the wise and the experience of the ages may be preserved by the quotation.—Isaac Disraeli.

Attempt the end, and never stand to doubt;
Nothing's so hard but search will find it out.
—Herrick.

O. O. McINTYRE

HAVRE, March 2.—The coast of Normandy is another perpetual drizzle, and the sun rarely shines on Havre. Passengers debouch under a huge shed where the boat train with its comic peanut stand whistle awaits for the four-hour trip to Paris.

The boat train trip is a preliminary "joy ride," with plenty of popping corks and suddenly organized quartets. It expresses the contagious buoyancy peculiar to France. The conductors as well as the gay uniformed train women add their good humor to what is a fine frolic—hooray!

On the outskirts of the town little boys and girls in black smocks race along the side of the coaches with outstretched hands, shouting, "Pinnies, pin-nies," and passengers shower centime pieces from windows for the scramble. Mothers stand in the background with mingled expressions of pleasure and slight embarrassment.

Rural France is always the same picture. Saboted peasant women toiling in the fields with their men. Roly-poly belled Normandy horses pulling ponderous two-wheeled carts. And here and there an ancient chateau with brick-walled garden, dove cote and sheepfold—a Corot come to life.

France utilizes every inch of farming space. There are little orchards that would be lost in Central Park and truck gardens the size of a bed—all as immaculate and well kept as a Fifth avenue window display. There are toy farms with patches of violets, tiny vineyards and belts of ploughed land as though taken from a play box. You have an impression everyone is working for the glory of France these days.

The first stop is at Rouen, where Jeanne d'Arc etched her illustrious name on the immortal scroll. On the station platform a tandem team of black goats drew a wine wagon along the train side to assuage what by this time had become an extremely doubtful thirst. After all one can only hold so much.

Along the country roadside workers were pedaling to their daily tasks with wine bottles strapped to the handle bars. The bicycle is the French laborer's flivver.

On the banks of the Seine stood those immobile fishermen with their side-slung baskets and hand poles. The Seine fisherman is a supreme lesson in optimism. He stands day after day with rarely a catch. He was there before the revolution and he will remain as long as hope springs eternal. He has been caricatured, editorialized and poetized into a national joke—but there he stands and somehow you warm pleasantly to his inexhaustible patience.

O, yes—the young girl who came across without the passport evidently out-talked the passport snatchers, for there she sat in a compartment of the boat train puffing her cigaret and smart-cracking with a circle of boy friends. And there I was worrying all the way across because the expiration of my visa was slightly blurred.

France's amiable attitude toward dogs is a constant glow for dog lovers. The train conductor suggested mine might occupy a vacant compartment adjoining with the compliments of the Chemins de Fer Etat. And a garcon from the diner brought him a huge bowl of chopped meat.

A Frenchman is the world's best wielder of the toothpick. He does his work openly and unashamed, in contrast to his Broadway brother who imagines he fools the multitude behind a napkin. One in the diner today seemed especially adroit. He had an upward and downward stroke coupled with a ball-bearing motion that—as you vulgar Americans have it—is vedeo-do.

* * *

The outskirts of Paris indicate nothing of the lure beyond. The tumbledown antiquity is extremely depressing. It is like going through the shabby streets of Chinatown to reach Fifth avenue. Porters swarm through the windows—and here we are in the Gare St. Lazarre. It was a nice buggy ride.

Clairvoyant Predictions
By DR. FRANK CRANE

A press dispatch last December said that the majority of French clairvoyants predicted for 1928 that France would be exempt from bloody revolutions, but there would be many important political changes.

Madame Jane Oudot forecast terrible cataclysms in Europe and North America, also that three French newspaper directors would go mad.

The beauty about these predictions is that if they never come true we will forget them. They will be lost in the shuffle of current news. But if they happen to come true they will be dug up and heralded as proofs of the truth of clairvoyancy.

As a matter of fact the whole clairvoyant business is a species of bunko.

The truth still holds as the poet sometime ago said:

"Heaven hides from all the book of fate,
All but the page prescribed the present date."

One of the advantages of the actual side of human existence is that no man knows what is coming. You can no more tell the future than you can see around the corner.

And this keeps life always interesting. It is always an adventure.

No matter how bad it may be, tomorrow it may take a turn for the better. And when it is at its best it behooves us to watch out that disaster does not overtake us.

The trouble is that we consider happiness as some goal to be gained. But happiness lies in the progress toward the goal, not in the gaining of it. As Robert Louis Stevenson said:

"The principal pleasure of life is not to arrive but to travel."

It is very doubtful if those who have made their competence and retired to spend it in idleness are any happier than those who are in the process of getting on.

All happiness in life comes from doing. It comes by the way.

LISTEN, WORLD!
By ELSIE ROBINSON

Seeing in the Night

I WENT into my garden one night.

It was very dark—a thick, cold darkness like a black wall before my face. A depressing darkness that closed about me like a cell. I felt a sudden horror of the night. I turned to go back into the lighted room where people were laughing and making jokes. But something held me—

I stood, waiting.

As I waited, the darkness began to thin—

The shadows lifted — moved — shapes separated — stood out against the sky. Stood out in a strange, noble pattern I had never seen by day. There were no colors, no small, merry sounds—none of the sweet distractions which make my daytime garden dear to me. But there was strength and order which I'd never felt in sunny hours. A sense of purpose in those shrouded, sleepy shades—a dignity to those great branches, arched against the sky—a peace and mystery to the velvet grass, which rose so lustily from out the soil of other lives. A strong, serene simplicity, which bound each little part within one lovely plan.

And suddenly I saw my garden with amazed awed eyes. It was no longer MY garden—something I had bought and planted with MY money and MY hands, a pleasant plot to decorate MY home. I saw instead that it was but a vital part of that mysterious Whole which men call life. A part of some vast pattern which I cannot comprehend—ruled by some law which holds all living cells within its grasp, the cells of men, the cells of beasts and flowers and bees.

The night pulsed with that purpose—

I saw all that because I waited in the night, waited until my eyes were able to endure the dark, until the dark could tell its secrets to my eyes. If I had gone away, the secrets would have stayed there, in the dark.

I think it is that way with sorrow, too. We come to it from out some warm and merry room. It closes on us, like a cold, dark wall about the heart. We hate its chill, black ugliness. We long to flee, back to the laughing hours.

And sometimes we do flee. Sometimes we try to numb our pain in noisy fun—or drown our bitter thoughts in clowning or in drink.

But sometimes we are brave enough to face the dark—and wait. Then, as we wait, the darkness thins and lifts. Our stupid eyes adjust themselves to pain. We still see dimly, but a plan appears, like a vast pattern laid against the soul's deep night.

AND SUDDENLY OUR PAIN IS CHANGED. NO LONGER DOES IT SEEM TO BE OUR PAIN, SOMETHING DECREED TO TORTURE OUR SMALL, PRIVATE SELVES. BUT NOW WE SEE THAT IT IS BUT A PART OF THAT MYSTERIOUS CYCLE MEN CALL LIFE. AND IN THAT CYCLE, HAPPINESS AND GRIEF, HEALTH, SUFFERING, BIRTH AND DEATH, ARE BUT A PHASE OF THE UNENDING EVOLUTION OF THE SOUL.

If you will face the darkness patiently the Truth will gradually stand out from pain's most desperate night. And there within the shadows you will find a peace and power which you never found by day.
